TEACHERS TO SUPERVISE SUGAR RATIONING

Each Person Must Have Book To Get Limited Supply

Anderson Issues Strict Rules against Hoarding by Public

Years in Jail and $10,000 Fine Announc- ed as Penalties

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—The nation's public school teachers were tonight the huge task of issuing sugar rationing books to every man, woman and child in the nation and were directed to crack down on hoarders by withholding the sweet from them until their copies are used up.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced details of the rationing program under which books containing stamps will be distributed entitling each individual to a daily limited quantity of sugar—about twelve ounces a week.

Penalty for Hoarding
When the 130,000,000 copies of the "Ration Book No. 1" are distributed "within a few weeks" persons who have built up hoards of sugar will have stamps torn from their books at the time of issuance to prohibit purchases by them of stocks in their cupboards are hoarded.

Only one person in each family will have to apply for the stamps. He will be required to sign an application stating the amount of sugar in his household. All supplies over two pounds per person will be considered hoarded sugar, Henderson said.

Plan Separate Registrations
To prevent injustices under the rationing provisions, the plan will permit individuals living in a household, but not members of the family unit, to register separately. The war production board, rather than the office of Price Administration headed by Henderson, is charged with responsibility for seeing that sugar supplies are distributed throughout the country so that every store will have sugar and the rationing plan goes into effect.

The WPB must also supervise the use of sugar throughout the year to meet the requirements of the (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Angry Debate in House Precedes Vote on Hiring Mrs. Roosevelt's Friends and Appropriat- ing $80,000 for Donald Duck Film

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—In an upsurge of revolt against the appointment of actor Melvyn Douglas as Mrs. Roosevelt's dancer-protege to high civilian defense posts, the House voted, 88 to 80, today to forbid use of civilian defense funds for "instructions in physical fitness by dancers, fan dancing, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainment."

Roosevelt Makes Bid for Congress With His Views

Says Nation Wants Men To Back Government Re- gardless of Party

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—President Roosevelt started a wave of political guessing today by declaring that in time of war we want a Congress composed of men, regardless of party, who will back up the government and have a record of backing it.

On Capitol Hill there were conflicting opinions as to what the president meant. Democratic leaders said the remark, made at a press conference, undoubtedly signified Mr. Roosevelt did not wish to see re-elected those members who consistently opposed administration foreign policy before Pearl Harbor.

"Blessing" on All
Republicans, interpreting the statement literally, said the chief executive had put his "blessing" on almost every sitting senator and representative because Congress has been virtually unanimous in support of administration proposals since Pearl Harbor.

The president's statement was made in reply to a request for comment on last Monday's speech by Edward J. Flynn, chairman of the Democratic National committee, in which Flynn said the election in November of a Congress hostile to the president would be tantamount to a major military disaster.

Republicans seized upon that speech as a challenge to their patriotism and Rep. Joseph P. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, Republican National chairman, said Flynn sought to "liquidate the Republican party and squelch all criticism."

Democratic leaders would not speak for quotation today but one House leader said the reference to those "who have a record" in backing up the government included important votes on measures passed before Pearl Harbor.

Predicts "New Faces"
Another Democratic leader predicted "there are going to be a lot of new faces here next year."

Rep. Ditter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Republican Campaign committee, quoted the president's words on the House floor and asserted:
"I felt that all of you would be glad to know that you are (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

State Guardsman Fired Upon near Balto Waterworks

Second Attempt at Sabo- tage Is Reported by Gen. Mohr

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Dwight M. Mohr, Maryland state guard commander, said another of a series of incidents apparently aimed at sabotaging the Baltimore waterworks occurred early today when a state guardsman on sentry duty at Montebello reservoir was fired upon from ambush.

The rifle bullet narrowly missed the guardsman who returned the fire. The shooting, General Mohr declared, was "a deliberate attempt to assassinate the guardsman."

The sentry saw the flash of the rifle shot and ducked for cover as the bullet whined by his head. He returned the fire from a prone position. The assailant, who had waited until the guardsman walked under a morning fog, disappeared in the early morning fog. The shooting occurred about 2:30 a. m.

Shortly afterward, the guard reported an unidentified man telephoned the sentry house near the filtration plant and said:

"I hope that bullet came close enough to you."

A 30-caliber empty shell, dated 1934, was found near the spot where the guardsman saw the flame of the attacker's gun. State guardsmen use the same calibre cartridges but their bear a more recent date.

Guardsmen have "orders to shoot to kill," Mohr said, adding that "this is war-time and we cannot take chances—we can only ask questions later."

Aged Filipino Leader of '99 In a New Role

Former Enemy of Ameri- cans Seen as a "Philip- pine Quisling"

American Commander Pays No Attention to Strange Demand

By RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6 (AP)—Old Emilio Aguinaldo leader of the 1899 revolt against American occupation of the Philippines, has apparently been installed, the army said today, as a sort of "Philippines Quisling" by the Japanese.

The aged "general," a communique said, broadcast from Manila an address to General Douglas MacArthur to "surrender to the Japs."

This advice was ignored by MacArthur. It was one of many similar radio speeches with which MacArthur and his troops have been "bombarded" recently. More pamphlets have been dropped by Japanese aviators, too, the latest telling Filipino soldiers of MacArthur's army that American money was growing worthless, and saying they were exposing their lives without remuneration.

Americans Amused
The only response of the troops, MacArthur informed the war department was one of "considerable amusement."

These developments were announced in the army's second communique of the day. The first said that more Japanese reinforcements had been landed on Bataan from nine troop ships, and that the guns of Corregidor and other island fortifications at the mouth of Manila Bay had destroyed Japanese gun emplacements installed presumably for the purpose of shelling the American-held islands.

The army also announced that the steamship Cynthia Olsen, under charter to the war department, had been given up for lost.

She had not been heard from since Dec. 7, when she radioed that a Japanese submarine was attacking, 1,200 miles west of Seattle. Thirty-five men are missing.

Combine Staff Chiefs
In Washington, meanwhile, it was announced that the United States and Britain had taken steps toward further unity in prosecuting the war by setting up a "combined chiefs of staff" group, charged with co-ordinating production and distribution of supplies and other war efforts and collaborating fully with other United Nations.

The new group will have two principal subdivisions, one of United States chiefs of staff, the other of British military and naval officials represented in Washington.

American Group
The United States group includes Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations; General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff; Admiral E. J. King, fleet commander in chief; and Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of army air forces.

Japanese Raids In Burma Broken Up by the Allies

American and British Units Destroy Ten Enemy Raiders

By DANIEL DE LUCE

RANGOON, Burma, Feb. 6 (AP)—In a swift and effective shift from offense to defense the American volunteer group and their RAF teammates broke up a chain of vicious Japanese raids on this Burma road port today by destroying at least ten and probably twenty raiders, up to two-thirds of the attacking force.

Their victory came in daylight, after Rangoon had been pounded all night by waves of enemy raiders in the third consecutive overnight attack. The last raid, at 9:50 a. m., was the seventh wave, involving thirty enemy planes, and when it was over this was the official score for the defenders:

American volunteer group: seven certainly shot down; five probably.

RAF: three certainly shot down; five probably.

There were no Allied losses.

Follows 24-Hour Attack
The accomplishment was the more remarkable because it followed by twenty-four hours a hard raid by two waves of the RAF's Blenheim bombers, escorted by American fighters, on the enemy's Salween river base of Paan, in lower Burma, from which the Japanese are trying to drive toward the Burma road.

One blond San Antonio fighter pilot on coming back from this raid reported: "Boy! they've got us! They've got us! They've got us!"

By the time the last Blenheim in the second wave had unloaded, he added, "there was not much of anything standing."

No Japanese Fighters
Again—as on every other day this week—no Japanese fighters appeared to fend off the RAF bombers, and the Texan wondered: "Does this mean the enemy is running short of fighters?"

Dozens of Japanese aircraft were over Rangoon in the moonlight last night. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Survivors Spend 2 Nights Adrift; 26 Men Missing

American Owned India Arrow Sunk by Submar- ine in Sight of Coast

Two Fishermen Pick Up 12 Men and Tow Their Life- boat to Port

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 6 (AP)—Two nights of desperate struggle for life against an enemy submarine, spreading flames, bitter cold and a black sea, all within sight of this resort's gay lights, were related today by twelve men, only known survivors of the latest tanker torpedoed.

Twenty-six men were missing from the crew of the American-owned India Arrow, 8,327-ton tanker sunk off the Atlantic coast Wednesday evening. Himself among the dozen to reach shore, their skipper said:

"I am doubtful if any others survived."

Two cod fishermen who had braved a fog-bound inlet for their daily chore found the survivors' lifeboat twelve miles off Ocean City this morning and towed it here.

Once the oil-grimed figures had been fed, scrubbed and rested at the Atlantic City coast guard station, they almost to a man announced their readiness to sail again.

Torpedoed Wednesday
The India Arrow was northbound when the torpedo crashed into its hull just aft of the engine room at 7 p. m., Wednesday. The ship sank so fast that only two or three men escaped from the engine room and Fred H. Baker of John's Island, S. C., reported he was the only one to get out of the crew's sleeping quarters in the stern.

Radio Operator Edward J. Shear of Port Arthur, Tex., got a fragmentary call for help and then was rolled out of the wireless shack.

Captain Carl S. Johnson of New Dorp, N. Y., and others were tossed into the sea by the force of the explosion and others leaped after them. Two lifeboats were launched, with several men in one, but only three in the number one boat.

Shear was one of the three.

"We just got the ropes off in the nick of time," said Shear. The ship keeled over on number two lifeboat.

I think number two must have been crushed and sunk with all its occupants. Then the tanker keeled back and flooded our lifeboat with oil and water to the gunwales.

Pick Up Nine Men

"We picked nine men out of the water. They all looked alike because they were covered with oil and we couldn't tell one from the other."

"We barely drifted clear of the surface oil as it caught fire. We were only about 300 feet on the other side of the tanker when the submarine started to shell."

"I could see the conning tower of the submarine illuminated by the oil fire. Every time a shell hit the tanker we could feel the vibration in our lifeboat, but we drifted without attempting to row because we were afraid the sub might shell us, too. They didn't."

"We could hear the screams of men in the water, crying for help. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

German Air-Borne Troops Bolster Resistance against Red Advance

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, Feb. 6 (AP)—The Red army, trying to widen three wedges imperiling Germany's long winter line, tonight admittedly was meeting increasing Nazi resistance, strengthened by air-borne reinforcements.

Front dispatches spoke for the first time in weeks of battles in which the Russians were outnumbered, but nevertheless said the Soviets were hacking their way westward after inflicting nearly 10,000 casualties on the invaders in a three-day period ending Thursday night.

Japs Occupy Samarinda in Drive To Take Eastern Coast of Borneo

[By The Associated Press]
BATAVIA, N. E. I., Feb. 6.—The Japanese have strengthened their hold on Borneo's eastern coast in a drive on Java by occupying Samarinda, sixty miles north of the wrecked oil plant of Balikpapan. Dutch high command announced Samarinda is an oil "feeder point" of Balikpapan.

After two destructive air attacks on Soerabaja, big allied naval base on eastern Java, Japanese planes were reconnoitered this island apparently is next on their invasion program.

Scouting planes were sighted over towns of Semarang, Marion, Betan, Solo and Tegal as Java's (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5) defenders girded for a possible parachute invasion attempt.

Used Parachute Troops

Survivors of the Balikpapan fight reaching here revealed that the invaders used parachute troops to take that port. The oil installations there were blasted by the retreating Dutch.

One physician told the Aneta news agency he hid in a ditch while parachutists landed behind the port passed within a few feet of him. At least one company of troops landed by parachute, he said.

Others disclosed that the Dutch delaying action was upset by failure of a plan to defend a stream behind the town with a fire set by off (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

Nazis Grumbling About Reverses, Goebbels Asserts

German Propaganda Minister Says People Are "Overworked"

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 6 (AP)—Germans are grumbling about reverses in Russia and because they are short of coal and potatoes, Hitler's own propaganda minister, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, admitted today in the Nazi journal Das Reich.

He explained it by saying the people were "overworked and irritable."

"It doesn't matter whether one wants to curse things occasionally," Goebbels wrote. "The reasons may be varied. One complains of the cold, another of the shortage of potatoes or coal, a third about the over-crowded trains, a fourth about the Eastern front, a fifth about the war in Africa. All this really is not bad because we all are overworked and irritable."

Shortage of Potatoes

In Washington, the agriculture department said that early fall frosts had cut German potato production 200,000,000 bushels and that the Nazis faced a possible rationing of this food, one of the principal items of their diet.

Goebbels returned to his familiar theme that Germany is a "young nation," saying that because of this the people had not developed full confidence in the Nazi doctrines.

"Great on Battlefield"

"On the battlefield we always have been a great people," he wrote. "In politics, however, we frequently have failed. We Germans must always be reminded of this strength again and again, because we don't feel sure of ourselves on the field of political decisions."

Goebbels said it was easy for the Germans to believe in victory during the battle of France when special announcements told of "victories every three hours."

"When the time comes that the conquered areas have to be held and defended, and when the leaders of the state and the army are faced with constantly new difficulties, then determination and morale are necessary."

he declared, "then Sally Rand, strip tease artist from my own congressional district down in the Ozarks, ought to be employed at once because she would, on this scale, be worth at least $25,000 per year to the civilian defense."

Reverting to Miss Chaney's development of "The Eleanor Glide," the Missouriian said, "if that is the prime requisite for such an important job, I promise you that I will persuade Sally Rand to name six of her ostrich fans Captain Jimmie, Captain Elliott, Lieut. John, Ensign Franklin, Sistine and Buzzie, respectively."

In short, sharp words, member after member pointed to the appropriations committee's report that "enemy air raids on the Continental United States are to be expected," and then asked bluntly what actors and dancers could do to eliminate the danger.

The omnibus supply bill carried fresh funds for a dozen federal bureaus, departments and agencies, including $100,000,000 to pay for civilian defense expenditures already authorized for fire-fighting equipment, medical supplies, facilities to manufacture gas masks and personnel salaries.

Jobs for Entertainers

The OGD personnel, it was disclosed this week, includes Douglas as head of an arts council, to be paid at the rate of $8,000 a year but only while actually working, and Miss Chaney who will receive $4,600 a year as head of children's activities in the physical fitness division.

"Boondoggling" was the way Rep. Paddis (D-Pa) described the appointments. He added that Douglas drew an OGD salary equal to that of General Douglas MacArthur and that Miss Chaney's pay was almost twice that which War Hero Captain Colin Kelly received before he was killed. Sarcasmically he added:

"But Captain Kelly's widow would stand small chance to get one of these positions because she is not on the blacklist of the Dies committee," investigating un-American activities.

It would, he asserted, require the income taxes from "sixteen hundred married farmers with a net income of $1,600 a year to pay the salary of this one dancer (Miss Chaney) alone."

Rep. Taber (R-NY), ranking G.O.P. member of the Appropriations committee, submitted a "parasite" list of his own, headed by Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes and including Douglas, Miss Chaney, and Joseph Lash, another of the first lady's friends, who has a seat on one of the civilian defense advisory councils.

He asserted that some of the appointments amounted to "sacrilege," and called upon Congress to "strike off the names of these leeches from the treasury's payroll."

Rep. Curtis (R-Neb) had another idea.

"Everyone in official Washington should be compelled," he said, "to spend at least one day at hard manual labor, to see how hard it is for the taxpayer to make a dollar."

"War is serious business," he added, "and employment, at taxpayers' expense, of night club dancers, movie actors and perfume peddlers to teach a lot of tommyrot in the name of civilian defense is an uncalled-for piece of money wasting."

Legion Vice Commanders Are Asked To Supervise Observation Posts

BALTIMORE, Feb. 6 (AP)—Lt. Col. Henry C. Barrett today asked vice-commanders of seven American Legion districts in Maryland to assume administrative powers over air conservation posts in their areas.

Barrett made the request as his first official act after being appointed state civil director, Maryland area, ground observer system, first interceptor command. He was named by Brig. Gen. J. C. McDowell, commander of the interceptor forces.

He described his appointment and that which he made of the American Legion men as a change designed to halt the flood of administrative matters being sent to interceptor command headquarters.

Sees Better Control

"Under this new set up better control can be maintained, and the responsibility of the proper operation of each post determined, which is not possible under the present set up," Barrett said, adding:

1,000 British Rescued

The navy's rescue of nearly 1,000 British troops who had been cut off in Malaya provided ample evidence of the heroic work British warships have been doing in Malayan waters.

This mission was carried out on several successive nights by fleet units operating under the very noses of the Japanese, and the Tommies now are helping to man Singapore's defenses.

A naval officer who took part in the operations said naval units and "all the small craft we could command" left Singapore in the afternoon, arriving off their rendezvous under cover of night.

Large vessels remained several miles offshore while launches and motorboats towed sampans and fishing boats through shallow water to beaches where they took on full loads then returned to the ships offshore.

Spend Night on Mainland

Many of the rescue forces remained on the mainland several nights, hiding the rescue craft in inlets and swamps while the futile task of rounding up the stranded Tommies proceeded.

"The last launch to reach Singapore was so packed the men couldn't see anything but the mast," the officer recounted.

Many women are being sent away, General Percival explained, not only because they are better off elsewhere but because it meant there would be less people to feed.

He added, however, that "a number of women are remaining behind doing valuable work."

Civilians have been removed from certain island areas, he said, for their own good and also to remove the possibility of fifth column activity such as hampered the British defense in Malaya.

With the first full weeks of the siege of Singapore running out, there still was no enemy effort to loose his grand assault, either frontally or with the parachute technique used in Crete.

See Grave Menace

In London as well as Singapore there was concern at the prospect of a major attempt to parachute invasion and this, coupled with the possibility of surreptitious night landings from small boats, was considered one of the greatest menaces confronting the island fortress.

Recent dispatches from London have emphasized the inability of European and even some Indian troops to distinguish between disguised Japanese troops from native Malaysians.

London informants expressed the belief that continued operations of British hurricanes against the Japanese raiders would greatly encourage the Singapore garrison and population even though the withdrawal of all these planes might become necessary if the Japanese began a major bombardment of the island's airfields.

Much of the day's defense program here on this beleaguered island was centered upon preparations against sneak attacks, not only by parachute but by small landing parties. Every green creek mouth along the north shore was under watch; every beach area was under intimately familiar to the defenders.

It was 123 years ago that modern Singapore was founded by Sir Stamford Raffles on behalf of the East India Company. The early city was destroyed in 1865 by the invading men of Java.

persons seeking to buy such sugar under the ration plan each week. The exact amount of sugar purchasable each week by every purchaser will be determined, Henderson said, when the WPB decides how much can be made available to the thousands of retail stores.

The public school teachers, under supervision of local rationing boards, will personally supervise the registration of consumers, the issuance of books, and the removal of stamps from the books of persons having excess supply.

"This action is necessary," Henderson said, "in order to place all sugar consumers on an equal footing. There has been a considerable amount of hoarding in recent weeks, and justice and fairness to all requires that those who have built up

"The proper function of the observation posts is the most important part of civilian protection, and each observer is just as responsible for the performance of his duty as a soldier in the army."

He asserted the American Legion organization in Maryland, dividing the state into seven districts afforded the best available organization for the administrative task. Actual warning would not be changed, he said, with posts phoning all reports directly to the filter center in Baltimore.

Will Be Local Directors

Each Legion district vice-commander will be named local civil director for his area. Under him will be a sub-director for each ten posts in the district.

Posts will report all administrative matters directly to the local directors. They will report to Barrett who will contact the regional director in Philadelphia. The latter will be subordinate to the interceptor command at New York.

hoards be restrained from buying any more sugar until their stocks have been used up. The rationing plan we are developing will tend to insure this and to provide for equitable distribution of sugar in the future.

"In the meantime every patriotic citizen should reduce his normal sugar consumption by at least a third. Those who have hoards should stop buying more sugar and start using up their hoards. Retailers should continue limiting sales to individuals until the formal rationing plan is put into effect. And consumers should remember that the retailers are not responsible for the shortage."

Rationing Declared Necessary

The rationing of sugar is absolutely necessary as a war measure, the price administrator emphasized. "The facts are that we can count now on only about 5,300,000 tons of sugar this year as against 7,989,000 tons in 1941. That means a one-third reduction must be made in both household and industrial consumption."

Unofficial sources have estimated that the amount of hoarded sugar in family cupboards might range from 300,000 to 500,000 tons at this time, constituting a considerable factor in the supply shortage.

Henderson explained the major reasons for the decline in supply as being threefold:

"Sugar cane is required to make molasses from which alcohol can be derived for manufacture of smokeless powder. Cutting down on sugar means more powder for our soldiers."

"Secondly our imports from the Philippines have been cut off and those from Hawaii will probably be curtailed."

"Third, our allies have lost some of their supply sources and will draw in part on some of our sources this year."

"For the first time every person in the country has an opportunity to make a direct contribution to the war by reducing his consumption of sugar. I am counting on every person to do his bit."

Other OPA officials said that supplies of sugar for home fruit packing and canning would be made available under some system to be worked out in future months.

Of the forty Japanese bombers and twenty fighters who attacked Soerabaja yesterday, the Dutch command said two fighters were shot down and "presumably two bombers." Three Dutch aircraft were lost. One pilot was killed and two are missing. Four civilians were wounded.

The belief persisted that a Japanese aircraft carrier was operating somewhere in the Java sea between Borneo and Java because of fighter planes participating in the Soerabaja attacks.

For the second straight day the Dutch made no mention of fighting at Ambona, second most important Dutch naval and air base 1,000 miles northeast of Soerabaja. Roundabout Tokyo reports claimed that Japanese landing forces had completely occupied the stronghold.

Further reports from Soerabaja said the population appeared much calmer during yesterday's attack than in the first heavy raid on Tuesday. There were no signs of panic, and as soon as the all-clear sounded this city of almost 350,000 returned to its normal life.

Of the twenty-seven persons taken to the hospital at Madjoen, four were said to have died of their wounds.

Alerts were sounded at many other villages and towns in Easy Java, and at some points anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

Man Takes Poison; Condition Is Fair

Earl W. Gerlach, 634 Elm street, was in a "fair" condition in Memorial hospital shortly after midnight this morning, suffering, police said, from the effects of taking poison.

Police were called to the home last evening at 11:10 o'clock and took the local man to the hospital where the contents of the stomach were pumped out and antidotes administered, police reported.

Officers George W. Deffenbaugh, T. T. Griffin and John G. Powers investigated the case. No charges have been placed against Gerlach, police said.

National Birthday Will Be Marked by Oakland Scouts

Plans Call for Full Week of Activities in Community

OAKLAND, Feb. 6 — The Boy Scouts of America are celebrating their thirty-second birthday anniversary, and for a week will bring their aims and purposes — that of character building and citizenship training — before the citizens of this country by a planned program of activity.

Locally the Oakland troop of scouts has a full week's program outlined which will take them to church, hiking, to a parent-scout dinner, and which will send several of them to various organizations to explain the things they learn and demonstrate the things they can do. The celebration will conclude on Thursday, February 12, Lincoln's birthday.

At the regular meeting this evening the boys rededicated themselves to the scout oath and laws. A hike is planned for Saturday and on Sunday the group will attend the Lutheran church for divine worship.

The Oakland troop will combine with the Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park troops for the parent-scout dinner, to be held Tuesday evening in Oakland high school auditorium. A scout picture, "Building for Citizenship," will be shown and there will also be contests, a boxing match, and a scout circus, presented by the scouts.

During the week members of the troop will give talks and demonstrations before local organizations. The program has been arranged by Howard Naylor, scoutmaster of Oakland troop. The Mt. Lake Park and Deer Park troops under direction of the Rev. Garrett Evans and Bryan Shockey, scoutmasters, respectively, will also have some scouting activities during the week.

Nine Draftees Leave

Nine inductees left this morning for Fort George G. Meade, near Baltimore, the local draft board announced.

They were Lawrence Lee Wensel, Oakland; John Ervin Shaffer, Vin-dexter; Mahlon Ray Bremman, Bunting; George Havran, Kempton; Carroll Edison Goehring, Accident; Merrill Keith Butler, Grantsville; Russell Clarence Moffa, Crelin; Kenneth Harold Shaffer, Oakland; and Earl Harding, Accident.

Meetings preliminary to the registration of those twenty to forty-four, for the purpose of giving out instructions to chief registrars who are to have charge at the twenty registration places in the county, have been arranged, according to information received from the County Draft Board.

Preliminary meetings are planned for Kitzmiller, Oakland High, Accident and Grantsville school buildings for short sessions. The dates are to be announced after all necessary supplies have been distributed.

Registrars have already received a copy of the regulations for this third registration and a sample of the registration card that is to be used. They are also being asked to select two, three or four assistant registrars to help in the work. The Draft Board named F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent, as assistant county chief registrar.

At the meeting the chief registrars will be required to take an oath concerning their duties and the country which they are serving. Members of the Draft Board plan to attend each of the four conferences.

Nazelrod Rites Held

Funeral services were conducted this morning at 10 o'clock for A. L. Nazelrod, 64, who died Wednesday in Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, W. Va., as the result of a self-inflicted gunshot wound. Services were held by the Rev. Minor Sprague, Methodist minister and in-patient in the cemetery nearby.

Nazelrod died in the hospital ten minutes after he was admitted and about three hours after he had shot away his left jawbone, cheekbone and other portions of his face.

Wilt Rites Held

Funeral services were held for Miss Rebekah Wilt, 73, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the North Glade Methodist church with the Rev. C. W. Fraker, of McHenry, in charge. Interment was in the John A. Wilt cemetery.

Miss Wilt died Wednesday morning at Swanton at the home of Mrs. Hattie Brobst. She was the last surviving member of her immediate family.

Aged Filipino

Marshal Sir John Dill, until recently chief of the Imperial general staff; Admiral Sir Charles Little; and Lieut. Gen. Sir Colville Wemyss; and Air Marshal A. T. Harris.

Aguinaldo was the leader of irreconcilable Philippine insurgents who fought against American occupation of the islands immediately after they had been wrested from the Spanish. The rebellion ended with his capture by a scout detail led by General Frederick Funston, then a young officer. He has been a hero with the Filipinos, but nevertheless his advice had no apparent effect upon the Filipino troops under MacArthur.

Nor did the latest pamphlet dropped.

This the department quoted as saying that the "worthless invasion currency" which "the Japanese brought with them and are forcing the population to accept was rapidly dominating Manila commerce. In full, the pamphlet said:

"To the Filipino soldiers:

"All banks in the city of Manila are under the regulations of the Japanese forces and newly issued war notes are controlling more and more financial activities of Manila day after day. For this reason the money you are receiving from the American forces as your salary is losing its value and will be waste paper in the near future."

"Take my word, you are exposing your life in danger without any remuneration. There is nothing so pointless. In Manila your countrymen enjoy life peacefully with full cooperation with the Japanese forces. Give up useless fighting. Surrender immediately to the Japanese forces."

In view of the nature of the currency which the Japs are circulating, the Filipino troops found this "particularly ludicrous," the communique said.

The Japanese, repeatedly beaten back in the Bataan peninsula fighting and again frustrated in an attempt to crack Corregidor, were reported today to be landing reinforcements in the Philippines from nine ships, further increasing the odds against the already heavily outnumbered men of General Douglas MacArthur.

A war department communique said an enemy plan to storm Corregidor had apparently been smashed in its earliest stages by accurate fire from the big guns of that fortress and the other island fortifications at the entrance to Manila Bay.

The forts shelled and destroyed Japanese gun emplacements on the southeast shore of the bay, installed there presumably to drive the American forces from their rocky island strongholds, and eliminate MacArthur's last possibility of retreat.

but couldn't see them. We didn't bail out that (Wednesday) night, but pulled out the sail and got under it to keep warm.

"We could see the reflection of the sea, so we set our course bailed out and started to oar."

Once they had escaped the flames spreading over the oil-coated sea and felt safe from the undersea boat, the half-dozen seamen set a watch for rescue vessels. They saw half a dozen during the night and sent up flares.

Each ship changed its course away from the victims—in apparent fear of a submarine's trap, Shear said.

Meanwhile the reflection of lights in Atlantic City and Ocean City set the course for the men. A contrary wind made their sail of little use and they were still twelve miles offshore when just before the second dawn Captain Frank D. Marshall in his 24-foot fishing skiff sighted a flare and went to investigate.

His boat, was smaller than the lifeboat, but it had a stove, and he piled all twelve aboard before taking the lifeboat in tow. He hurried to Atlantic City while his one-man crew made coffee for the shivering twelve.

"Some of them could barely crawl aboard," said Marshall.

The India-Arrow, owned by the Socony-Vacuum Oil Company, was the seventeenth ship sunk by submarines in recent weeks off the Atlantic coast of the United States and Canada.

Japanese Raids

night, however—at least forty-four in the first six waves. The RAF drove off one night attack and the bombers had to jettison their cargoes, one possibly being destroyed. Some fires were started on an airfield north of Rangoon but they were put out quickly and a statement said there was no damage. There were other fires in a suburban residential district.

The British and Burmese troops fighting the invaders on the Salween front 100 miles east of Rangoon appeared standing firm on their orders "to fight the Japanese on every inch of our soil, to the last shot and, if necessary, to the last man."

British-held Martan, at the mouth of the Salween, where it flows into the broad gulf of Martaban, was under sporadic Japanese cannon fire but a communique said there were no casualties or damage.

The defending forces were told bluntly, however, by Maung Aye, Burma's home minister, that "any further withdrawal will be dangerous" and that "the present situation is very serious."

German Submarines Taking Great Toll of Shipping in the Atlantic

LONDON, Feb. 6 (AP)—German submarines, including those raiding United States coastal waters, are taking a mounting toll of allied shipping in the Atlantic. It was announced tonight by official British sources who predicted the force of U-boats in these waters "quite possibly will be increased."

These sources said that while present losses were the highest in six months, they did not yet approach the damage inflicted by Nazi undersea raiders in the first World war.

The intensity of U-boat operations in American shipping lanes was attributed to two factors:

A large proportion of the German submarine fleet had been assigned to the Western Atlantic;

At least some of these craft might be getting their supplies from surface mother ships.

On one point the official sources were agreed—that "more U-boats are operating in the Western Atlantic than ever before."

(In Berlin "authoritative military quarters" listed the six "enemy" ships which the high command yesterday said had been sunk by submarines of the American east coast as the freighter, Amerikaland, the tanker, Trontolite and the steamers, Rochester, Empire, Wildbeeste, Traveler and Tacoma Star. This brought total Nazi claims on ships sunk off the east coast of the United States and Canada to forty-nine vessels totalling 349,000 tons.

(The United States navy has confirmed the sinking of seventeen ships since mid-January. Loss of the Rochester, only American ship in the six named today, was announced by the navy Jan. 31. In listing the Swedish-flag Amerikaland, said by her New York operators still to be in service, the Nazis apparently had confused her with another ore-carrier, the American-flag Venore, which was destroyed Jan. 23 off the North Carolina coast.)

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR CONVENES HERE TODAY AT MAPLESIDE CHURCH

The Mapleside Methodist church will be the scene of the annual Christian Endeavor conference of the Cumberland circuit, starting at 9:45 a. m. and continuing all day.

An address by the Rev. O. B. Langgall, Hagerstown district superintendent, "Mankind on Trial" will be the theme of the conference which closes tonight.

At the morning session, Melvin Chapel will be in charge of the devotionals with "Blind Leaders" as the topic. The Rev. W. Randolph Keefe, Jr., pastor of Grace Baptist Church, will speak on "A Religion That Counts," followed by conferences led by the Rev. S. Register Neel, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church, on "Evangelism"; the Rev. A. O. Osteen, pastor of the Union Grove Methodist Church, on "Stewardship"; and the Rev. W. M. White, pastor of the host church, on "Leadership."

In the afternoon the Mapleside group will lead the devotionals with the Rev. Dr. Leighton B. Hensley, pastor of the Southminster Presbyterian Church, speaking on "Duties of Citizenship." The Rev. H. R. Kester, pastor of Kingsley Methodist Church, will be the dinner speaker at 5:30 p. m. on "The Challenging Christ."

Also included in the evening session will be devotionals and a play, "The Outcast," by the Fairview Church group.

Doak Is Transferred To Fort McClellan

Corporal Robert L. Doak, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Henderson, 517 Memorial avenue, has recently been transferred from Camp Croft, S. C., to the new Branch Imperial Re-Placement Training Center at Fort McClellan, Ala. Corporal Doak was one of the original cadetmen selected to help activate this new camp and he was made, Commanding General, Otto F. Lange's secretary upon his arrival because of his knowledge of shorthand and typing.

Besides taking the General's dictation, Corporal Doak also does work for the staff officers in the new replacement center headquarters. Camp McClellan is the newest of Uncle Sam's training centers and was activated on January 15.

Private Paul K. Harmon is now taking the course conducted at the Air Corps Gunnery school at Las Vegas, Nev. He is the son of Mrs. Dorothy Harmon, 312 Grand avenue, and is a 1938 graduate of the Fort Hill High School. Prior to Pvt. Harmon's enlistment in the United States army air corps here June 16, he was employed by the Celanese Corporation.

O'Connor Declares War Efforts Is Most Important

Governor Declines To Whether He Will again Run for Office

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 6 — Governor O'Connor, departing the capital on a defense inspection trip to Salisbury, said today that the war effort was of greater importance now than anything in politics.

Asked to comment on the more Evening Sun's report that he would announce his resignation for a second four-year term in 1944, the Democratic chief executive said:

"I feel that the successful prosecution of the war is of greater importance than any other matter. I don't care say anything (about politics)."

"The all-important question now is winning the war. I'm doing nothing divert my attention from defense matters."

Report Comes From Friends

The Evening Sun said the information that the governor would announce his second term came in April "was confided to friends who inquired about the governor's political plans in order that they might make their own preparations for the primary election in September."

A primary appears inevitable, Evening Sun said, because Tim E. Cook of Frederick, independent candidate for the Democratic nomination, has decided to stay in the race.

Other potential candidates have been mentioned are Mr. Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore and Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the University of Maryland.

Silent on County Problems

O'Connor not only declined comment on those reports but was silent on the Harford county school question and the Charles county labor question because, he said, these matters had not been brought officially to his attention.

The Baltimore Sun said a special legislative session might be necessary to authorize Harford county to issue bonds to provide money to match federal funds for new schools to house children of defense workers who have moved into the county.

In Charles county there have been assertions the CCC was "hogging" farm labor, which alarmed at a premium. To alleviate the situation, P. C. Turner, state Bureau president, has proposed compulsory labor law similar to that enacted in the last World war.

THE DAILY STORY

THE TRIP

The Story of a Mother's Journey, and Why It Was More Beautiful because She Never Took It

(Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.)

By MARY GILL

It was her special, favorite dream—the trip to California—a streamer streaking across the West, cutting through jagged mountains and arriving with quiet suddenness in San Francisco... a city standing like some tall, brisk guard against the pounding force of the ocean. John and she had planned the trip for their honeymoon. Then she had taken a new job which necessarily canceled the trip and she had postponed it indefinitely. One day Anna Marshall poured soap flakes into the dishpan and brushed up the suds into white tufts of suds.

around the house, eating her cooking like well-mannered but ravenous young vultures. She couldn't remember ever having mentioned the California trip aloud, but somehow, the children had found out about it.

On her birthday, two weeks ago, they had given her an envelope. Inside the envelope she had found a check for $150 made out to cash. "But what on earth is this for?" she had questioned them. They must have scripped for months to gather that sum of money together. "We've decided that you need a rest, mother. We want you to use the money for a trip to California." She had felt the pinkness rise quietly in her cheeks while she looked at them. They had ferreted out her special, secret dream. "But—but—well, I—". She sifted words through her mind in search of the right ones. It was useless. She wiped her eyes with her apron.

Tonight it was different.

The children went on. They planned every detail of the trip for her, seeing that she bought the right new clothes, that she had a ticket on the finest train with the best accommodations. "You've waited for so long, Mother," they said, "we want you to have just the kind of trip you've been dreaming about all these years."

And now tomorrow... tomorrow the dream was all set to come true. In the morning, the children would take her to the train and the train would take her to California. Kathie would be waiting there to meet the train. Everything was all arranged.

Anna Marshall poured another handful of soap flakes into the dishpan to make more suds for the kettles. Kathie and the children, would they understand? Would they see how it was? Thoughts chased through her head, bumping into one another. Would they all be too hurt? Too disappointed? It didn't matter about the ticket. The railroad company would refund her money and she would buy something she and the children could all get some good out of... probably that lovely, gray electric stove in the window of the electric company. She could cook them up some scrumptious meals on a stove like that.

Anne Marshall looked down dreamily into the crystal balloons of soap suds which were melting quickly away. The long streamliner cutting through the jagged mountains and arriving suddenly beside the pounding ocean. And, right beside her, laughing and calling her attention eagerly to this and to that was John.

That was why she must go on dreaming and re-dreaming about the trip. That was why there was no way they could ever make her dream come true now, not without him.

We Are Getting Up Some Steam Now

CONFUSION to the point of chaos has prevailed in Washington ever since the defense preparations started, and it was aggravated by the sudden onslaught of war. But it is reassuring to have reports from capital correspondents that out of the welter of duplications and wasted efforts and tangled authority some co-ordination is gradually being achieved and that results are accruing.

In consequence production is going ahead by leaps and bound all over the country. Columnist Clapper reports gratifying progress noted on a visit just made to Detroit.

General Motors is moving swiftly to fulfill an obligation to produce forty per cent of the plane engines for the army, twenty-five per cent of the tanks, half of the trucks and a third of the machine guns along with half of the Diesel engines needed for the navy.

Studebaker, with its normal auto production of $8,000,000 a month, will reach $25,000,000 a month in war goods by December and $40,000,000 a month by next June.

Chrysler employed 73,000 men before Pearl Harbor and will need 90,000 by December for war work under contract. General Motors will jump its wage rolls from $48,000 to $50,000.

Also, the great Ford plants are turning out planes, tanks and guns.

In the conversion to war production, it has been found that many thousands of machines can be utilized—11,000 of Chrysler's 19,000, sixty to seventy per cent of Studebaker's.

And so the story goes in kind, these reports being typical. The nation's great automobile plant is already well on the way to war production; and when it hits its stride it will prove one of the greatest factors for victory this country has had available.

Only Politicians Are Lagging

CERTAINLY it has not escaped public attention that revelations of incompetency and lethargy in the defense war programs cast no discredit on the men who are on the line—both the production line and the battle line. The weakness is among the politicians, the brass hats of the army and the navy, and the Labor bureau chiefs whose bias and timidity have encouraged strikes in defense industries.

The only possible explanation is that the blight of favoritism, politics and petty jealousy does not extend to the men of fewer years and lesser rank. They are still young enough to be inspired by the American principle that merit will be rewarded. They have not arrived at the point where a reach for higher preferment brings them into contact with the intrigues of bureau politics, Washington official society and truckling to the social workers who play at statecraft. They have not had to run that gauntlet of compromise with integrity, capacity and initiative that all too frequently unman the aspirant.

On the firing line Americans are standing and fighting in the best tradition of their forefathers. By land, sea and air they are taking the enemy on at great odds and holding him until more like them can come in to turn the tide for a general offensive campaign. Production operations throughout the land are being speeded beyond estimates. Training and transport are keeping the fast pace set during the First World War. Only the politicians are lagging, but even they are showing signs of taking heart from the vigor, will and resourcefulness of the people.

Sunday Work Pay Decision Needed

ONE of the most important issues to come before the new War Labor Board is the dispute involving the CIO United Auto Workers and the vast automobile industry now converted to production of war material. The dispute is holding up introduction of the seven-day work week in plants holding $9,000,000,000 in war orders. The War Production Board wants the automobile plants operated on a twenty-four-hour basis seven days a week. Both the union and the manufacturers are willing to put this system into effect, but there is one point over which they differ. The union demands the retention of a contract clause under which workers get double pay for Sunday whether or not they work more than forty hours a week. Manufacturers ask that this clause be waived and that Sunday be regarded as an ordinary work day. They do not object to paying time and a half for work in excess of forty hours a week, but argue that the clause providing double time for Sunday work was put in when the plants were making only automobiles and was frankly designed to discourage work on Sundays and holidays.

The union point of view is that abandonment of the extra compensation for Sunday would not speed up the output of munitions, but would merely increase the margin of profit for the companies. "We are willing to give up anything necessary for the security of our country," a CIO spokesman says. "But we are not willing to surrender any of our hard-won gains just to enrich the corporations."

Of course, the union members want to make as much as possible in wages. Equally, of course, the companies do not want to pay out any more than they have to. There doubtless are other arguments on each side which have not been brought out. It is impossible to form a fair opinion without all the facts.

But one thing is clear: maximum war production is of prime importance. War plants must work at capacity. And the situation regarding double pay for Sunday work in former automobile plants doubtless applies to other industrial categories. It would be of great benefit to war production in general if the War Labor Board could make a fair decision on this issue and apply it as far as possible to industry as a whole.

Tire Branding Gives Thefts a Setback

THAT necessity is indeed the mother of invention is shown by a development that has already come in the train of the curtailment and rationing of automobile tires.

Tire thefts have presented an added problem to police authorities and one means of recovering those stolen is the listing of the tire serial numbers. These, sometimes, are partly obliterated by reason of wear. But now comes a big tire and rubber company with a plan for branding owners' initials on the tires as cattle ranchers brand their stock on the range. A special electrically heated iron, easily adjustable so letters can be interchanged in a few seconds, is used for the purpose. The initials, being much larger than the serial numbers, make hiding of the stolen tires more difficult and their recovery much easier.

We can depend upon American ingenuity to meet various other conditions arising from war sacrifices, just as we can depend upon it for the development of superior fighting machinery. In many instances as in this one, past experience will point the way.

Are We Returning To the Fireside?

AN INTERESTING DISCUSSION has resulted from the announcement by the Federal Reserve Board that furniture sales have increased in the last year by twenty-two per cent.

The Furniture Market News, which may seem to be veering a bit toward the romantic, says these increased sales indicate a nation-wide trend back to the fireside. The furniture wholesalers see no trend indications, resting with the explanation that hiked wages and greater employment have been responsible for boosting the sales.

But even so, if more furniture is being bought than normal population increase would allow, the explanation would seem to tilt in behalf of the trade journal's conclusion, although it may be said that motives are always difficult to analyze.

If more attachment is being felt for the fireside, that is all to the good. Perhaps too many of us have been away from it too much in recent years. And it is a pretty good and cheerful place, after all. At any rate, the trend should furnish an interesting experience of some value when automobile tires wear out and more cars have to be laid up.

More money is annually spent on bowling than on baseball or horseracing, statistics show. We'd never have guessed pin money could amount to so much.

Now there is talk of organizing a women's army in the United States. Those Axis don't know what they let themselves in for.

Looking at You

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Everybody who looks at you sees someone that isn't you. Everybody sees in you what interests him most.

The beggar sees a man who may give him a dime. The tailor sees the fit of your clothes, the barber wonders who cut your hair, the skin specialist thinks one of his treatments might do you much good, and the recruiting officer examines you mentally for combat service.

The salesman sees a customer. The dentist observes your teeth and the shape of your jaw. The doctor notices your posture and color. The man in the complaint department sees a possible grouch. The actor sees his "public" in you. The newspaperman sees a reader. The detective sees a possible lawbreaker. The street sweeper sees "one of those guys who throw things in the gutter instead of into the refuse can."

The forest ranger sees a careless smoker. The pedestrian sees a reckless driver. The man in the car sees a slow-moving pedestrian. The dog sees a man who may pet him—or kick him.

Your mother sees the cunning little boy you used to be. Your wife sees the man you were and the man you have become—careless, brooding, cheerful, timid, audacious, but perhaps (let us hope) lovable. Every woman makes a private judgment. So does every man.

In your mirror you see a face that needs to be shaved entirely too often and a human being you never did completely understand.

And your God looks at you keeps His opinion to Himself. He you hope, has not lost faith in you!

Drive to Turkey Seen Most Likely Plan for Hitler

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The diplomatic air is laden with crackling rumors about Hitler organizing all-out final surprise drives in a sensational surprise gamble to win or lose this year. Mentioned most are:

A campaign through the Near East to meet and join with the Japs in India to rule that half of the world; Invasion of England; the long delayed move through Spain, or something mysteriously new that no one outside of Berlin has considered yet.

These rumors are too tall for anyone here to visualize as possibilities because Mr. Hitler is obviously going to be required to cut his spring suit to the size of the cloth he has spun in Russia.

As he is committed there to a front 1,200 miles in length, he cannot spare many of his 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 remaining troops for action elsewhere. No one here can see how he can sacrifice more than 200,000 or 300,000 first line fighters from his spring obligation. With such a small force he certainly cannot attempt anything the rumors suggest, nor can he create very much of a sensation anywhere.

The tall, threatening tales coming out of Europe are therefore, diagnosed as Axis grease designed to cover his embarrassment.

British Much Stronger

Invasion of England sounds foolish also, because the British now are twice as strong in the air as when he tried to prepare the way for invasion before—while he is weaker. There is nothing to be won in Spain except typhus and Gibraltar.

In Libya, Rommel now has 75,000 or 80,000 men and outnumbers the British in fighting forces at the front. He has two armored divisions, four full motorized divisions, a couple of motorized Italian divisions and more troops back along the supply lines—all filled now, re-armed and fighting. The British have lost much of their equipment.

If Hitler reinforces Rommel further and uses the 200,000 or 300,000 troops he might spare, for a peaceful or forced penetration of Turkey, he could get something good going against the Iran and Iraq fields from two sides. That is a logical military objective, far closer within the realm of reasonable hope for him.

Turkey, at least expects it, and has been getting ready.

Attitude Changes

The general attitude here toward Russian prospects has changed. Hitler's promised spring drive cannot get going much before May. The mud up to then is worse than the snow and cold now. It is unlikely that he will strike again for Moscow, where the Red defenses are strongest, but no doubt will try something new.

A wedge through the south to the Caucasus (to link up with the Rommel-Turkish campaign) seems called for, by the situation. To keep the Red forces tied down in the north, he might strike again for Leningrad, and possibly get it, but no one now foresees an end to the Russian front this year.

Our lease-lend stuff will be arriving on those lines in bulk by spring, and will help.

Elkhart Plan Favored

As the Roosevelt labor armistice group sat down to its first meeting, it became increasing evident FDR had hurried forward this proposal as a stop-Lewis publicity stunt.

Truth is, Wayne Coy, head of the office of emergency management, came to the President's desk with the armistice idea just as Uncle John Lewis was getting annoying headlines with his unpredicated suggestion for CIO-AFL peace. The President's announcement effectively killed the Lewis suggestion, but the problem then developed as to how the armistice could be made operative.

Both CIO and AFL seem to be doing their bit to keep the president from being embarrassed—and in a peculiar way. At Elkhart, Ind.,

War Situation Is Serious for United Nations but Conditions Are Assuring

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the first week of February, the United States and Great Britain are on the defensive at every point where they come in contact with the Axis. The United States is on the defensive in the Philippines. The British are on the defensive both at Singapore and in North Africa.

Besides, Britain and the United States, especially the latter, are in a position against which military experts have always warned, which we were on guard against and tried to avoid. We are operating in two oceans at once.

We are resisting the two ends of a gigantic Axis pincher—the Japanese end in the Southwest Pacific, the German end in the Eastern Atlantic. We are suffering, in an active and costly way, the handicap inherent in such a situation. We are dividing our effort—sending reinforcements westward toward the Pacific arena, and at the same time sending men and materials eastward to the British Isles and North Africa. In the same way, the British are obliged to divide their effort. They are sending reinforcements to North Africa against the Germans and Italians, and at the same time to the Southwest Pacific against the Japanese.

At all these points of contact, the United States and Britain are on the defensive—it is the enemy that has the initiative. Russia the Exception. Only by adding Russia to the picture does it become less gloomy. Where Russia and Germany come in contact, it is Germany that is on the defensive. Not only is Russia driving Germany back. It is probable that Russia, by the force and persistence of her attack, has so engaged Germany as to render the latter unable to make a winter or spring drive elsewhere. Had Germany been able to hold her front in Russia, it is likely she would have struck against the British, either directly on the British Isles or in North Africa, or indirectly through Turkey or elsewhere in the Mediterranean.

Probably it is now too late for such a drive. If Russia has prevented it, then Russia has made an immense contribution. Had Germany been able to make a full drive against Britain during the winter and spring, Britain might have lost North Africa, and certainly would have been unable to send reinforcements to Singapore.

No Synchronization

Whether Germany intended to make a winter drive against Britain, and was only prevented by the unexpected strength of Russia, cannot be known until years from now. It seems probable she had the intention; and probable that her intended drive against Britain was meant to synchronize with the Japanese attack on the British and Americans. At the time Japan made the attack, December 7, Hitler may still have been under the illusion that he could hold the Russians readily, and divert much of his strength to an attack upon Britain coinciding with the Japanese one. On the day of the Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor, and for weeks after, military experts watched, expectantly, for corresponding action by the Germans in the Eastern Atlantic.

If we and Britain have been saved from a drive by Germany coinciding with the Japanese one, we have been fortunate and should be grateful. As it is, the situation of our two nations is uncomfortable. Thanks to Russia, the situation of Britain as against Germany is not so serious. Any possibility of Germany either attacking Britain directly, or completely overrunning Africa, must now be postponed until Germany does whatever she is able to do with Russia. It is apparent Hitler must now reassemble all his strength for a drive against Russia after winter passes. Until after that, and dependent upon the outcome of that, Britain seems safe from any concentrated attack.

Tense Situation

In the Southwest Pacific, however, the situation is acutely tense for both ourselves and Britain. Japan, up to this moment, has the initiative, and is having steady success. If she captures the Philippines, Singapore, and all the Dutch East Indies, worse will follow. From the vantage ground in which she would then be, she could take steps extremely damaging to the United Nations. She could stop supplies going to China by way of the Burma Road. She could take Burma. In Burma, she would be, in the classic phrase, an arrow pointed toward India. She would be—except for what opposition could remain in China—well on the way toward her dream of dominating and organizing the some 800 millions who compose the yellow and brown races.

Whether Japan can succeed will be determined in a few weeks or months. To prevent her from succeeding justifies the most desperate speed on our part. The difference between resisting Japan now, and attacking her after she becomes entrenched, is enormous. To oust an entrenched Japan would require years of the utmost effort by the United States and Britain.

As against the seriousness of the present situation, certain deeply fundamental conditions are assuring. Nothing that has happened in the war so far has impaired in any degree the fighting force of Britain, in men, materials and organization; rather, she is better equipped today than at any time since the war began. As for the United States, we are only a small fraction on our way toward achieving our maximum power. And we are gathering momentum at a speed that few realize.

Gen. Johnson Says American People Need a Jarring

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—It is not defeatism to admit that bungling war-making, if the conclusion is not: "So you're licked you big palooka. Lie down and quit," but on the contrary, is: "Get in there and sock, or the referee will declare this waltzing match no contest."

Something of the latter sort would be appropriate to our conduct of this war. It is going seriously against us. In the opinion of most military experts I know, 1942 looks very serious. Here is the worst year in history. Right now, before our eyes, the changing of the political domination of half the globe. At its opening, it has brought us the greatest naval disaster in our history.

Strength Diminished

With that knock-out punch, British misfortune, it has taken from us an element of war strength on which we had counted for two generations—naval supremacy in the Pacific. In the process it has breached the principle bastion of our seaward defense—Hawaii—which we had regarded as impregnable.

In the meantime, the strength of our principal allies or friends upon which we had been taught, rely, has been proved to be strength sufficient to resist us, but that to the full value (pledged to us) of all the wealth and resources accumulated in the United States since Christopher Columbus.

In giving it we shall be forced to violate strategic principle number one and scatter and drive our strength away over the wide surface of the known earth, instead of concentrating in the place where we can meet any maximum enemy strength with a greater strength of our own.

Careless Years

The process of stumbling and fumbling and blundering ourselves into this unhappy situation has taken years. It has been signaled by a sort of happy-go-lucky carelessness which pool-pocked plans worked out by veteran experts on experience and substituted for them flash-in-the-pan experiments, ill-considered, poorly organized and lacking either competence or sufficient responsibility and authority. There may be an equivalent record of waste and ineptitude but it does not read come to mind.

There is no use crying over spilt milk or wasted billions in wealth and opportunity for national defense, and there would be no excuse for such a column as this if one aspect of it—did not remain. It is this—speaking by and large to the general public, instead of being shaken with indignation, simply does not seem to give a thinned dam—not even yet.

When the Maine was sunk in Haulia harbor and our flag on Fort Sumter was fired upon, these events were the culmination of years of incidents that had led the whole country (in one case) and all of the North (in the other) seething with anger. What happened was close to home and so most everybody nursed a grievance.

Different Now

This upheaval is different. Most people don't even know the names of the areas involved and "the freedoms" are just a little too far up in the rarified stratosphere in the average guy to tell the difference between a war for them and a war to gain possession of rubber and distant dominions.

It is too late to talk about that now. That may have brought us into the war, but the only fact counts now is that we are in it, and must get ready to give a good account of ourselves or suffer the worst humiliation and loss our country has ever known.

This is the fact that must be brought home to our people to get them out of their smugness and there is not a day to lose.

Case Worth Emulation

From the Johnstown, Pa., Democrat

Donald M. Nelson's forthright willingness to be "the goat" if the nation's military program fails under the new War Production Board of which he is head introduces a new note of eagerness to accept responsibility, heretofore lacking in our avowed pledge to defeat the Axis.

His denial of political ambition is another refreshing sidelight on land and at a time when individual ambition in many cases gets in the way of public welfare.

It would be well for everyone engaged in the victory program to learn from Nelson's WPB down to the lowest grease swipe in the machine shop and to the least person in the civilian defense service—to accept Nelson's lead in setting aside personal ambition for the good of America's future.

Such candor bodes well for the victory program. Without it, a face disaster.

Francis Walter Drumm Weds Grantsville Girl

Local Man Takes Miss Helen Virginia Wiseman as Bride

Miss Helen Virginia Wiseman, daughter of C. C. Wiseman, of Grantsville, became the bride of Francis Walter Drumm, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Drumm, 234 Aviretti avenue, yesterday. The ceremony was performed at 10:30 a. m. in the rectory of St. Patrick's Catholic church, with the Rev. Thomas A. Hardesty officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Doak were the attendants.

The bride was attired in a teal blue velvet costume with which she wore brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. The matron of honor wore a black velvet dress and a corsage of pink rose buds.

The bride is a graduate of Grantsville high school, class of '35, and is employed by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, this city. The bridegroom is a graduate of LaSalle high school, class of '34, and is employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in the capacity of a Diesel supervisor.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, following the ceremony, to members of the wedding party and the following members of the immediate families: C. C. Wiseman, Mrs. Edna Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Barnard, Mrs. Rose Louise, Mrs. Idella Hartsock, Mrs. Harry Payne, Miss Mary Catherine Drumm and Miss Gladys Lepley. Mr. and Mrs. Drumm left for a wedding trip to Philadelphia and New York City.

SILENT PRAYER HELD AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH FOR MEN IN SERVICE

A silent prayer for the twenty-seven members of St. Paul's Lutheran church, who are serving in the armed forces, was led by William A. Gunter, toastmaster at the annual Father and Son Banquet of the St. Paul's Lutheran church Sunday school, last evening at the Central Y. M. C. A. Mr. Gunter told appropriate short stories between his introductions of the speakers.

Ralph R. Webster, principal of Allegheny high school, was the guest speaker. In speaking on the relation of father and son he illustrated with extracts from Horace P. Mann. The Rev. H. T. Bowersox welcomed the group and urged fathers to attend the church services and set a good example for their sons.

Impromptu speeches were made by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools of Allegheny county, who spoke a word of encouragement to the sons. George Eppier, superintendent of the Sunday school, spoke on the activities of the young people of the church and Clarence Valentine, stressed friendship between father and son. C. R. Clear entertained the group with slight of hand tricks.

The musical program included vocal selections by Andrew Wilson with Calvin Keiter at the piano. Florian Wilson led the group singing, and called upon Robert Doty, John Frost and Ronald Fearer to sing solos. Perry Rosenmerkle was at the piano.

Fifty-one guests attended the affair which was arranged by Donald U. Moffett and R. Harold Fearer.

Yuhoodi Club Makes Plans for Dance

Mrs. R. Bruce DuVal was appointed to select the corsages to carry out the club colors of red, green and yellow, for each member of the Yuhoodi Club to wear at the Charity dance the club is sponsoring. The dance will be held from 9 to 1 o'clock February 20 at the Clary Club with the Society Ramblers playing and will be semi-formal. Invitations will be issued February 10, it was announced at the meeting of the club last evening at the home of Mrs. DuVal, 518 Shriver avenue.

Mrs. Walter Perdue was received as a new member into the club, and Mrs. Maud Thompson was appointed to purchase club pins for each member.

Following the meeting cards were played and prizes won by Mrs. Sarah Connor, Mrs. Louise Moyer and Mrs. Garnett McClellan. The red, green and yellow color scheme was carried out in the refreshments.

Others present were Mrs. Evelyn Judy, Mrs. Pauline Thompson, Mrs. Beatrice Smith, Mrs. Maud Thompson and Mrs. Geraldine Varner.

Mrs. Evelyn Judy will be hostess at 8 o'clock February 16 at her home, 221 Carroll street.

C.S.M.C. Plans Dance

A feature of the entertainment, at the annual dance of the Western Maryland Conference of the Catholic Students Mission Crusade to be held Monday evening, in the ball room of the Knights of Columbus home, will be a comedy skit. Jay Van's orchestra will play from 9 to 1 o'clock.

The American and crusade flags and the school banners will form the decorations.

Miss Phyllis Sell is chairman of arrangements, she will be assisted by Miss Helen Martz, Miss Matilda Barry, Miss Mary Aaron, Miss Mary Evelyn Beck, Miss Dorothy Mullan, John Glick, Robert Brown and Bernard Burns.

Surprise Shower Is Given in Honor Of Mrs. K. R. Hosey

Mrs. William Cramer, Jr., and Mrs. Leo Hunter Are Hostesses

Mrs. William Cramer, Jr., and Mrs. Leo Hunter entertained in honor of Mrs. K. R. Hosey, with a surprise personal shower Wednesday evening at Mrs. Cramer's home, 837 Camden avenue. Mrs. Hosey before her marriage December 27, was Miss Jean Baep.

Bridge was played following the shower and prizes were won by Mrs. Taylor Brown, Mrs. Thomas Steele, Mrs. Leah Hosey and Mrs. James B. Reinhardt. The pink color scheme was carried out in the flowers and gift packages. A Dutch lunch was served.

How to make Pillsbury's Crown-of-Cherries Dessert and be first in the hearts of your family!

Complete recipe:

1. Combine 2 tps. cornstarch and 2 Tps. sugar; add 1/2 c. cherry juice gradually; cook until thick and clear. Pour this glaze into a well-greased 8-in. layer pan. 2. Arrange 2 c. (No. 2 can) sour pitted cherries, well drained, on glaze to cover bottom of pan. 3. Sift and measure 1 1/4 c. Enriched Pillsbury's Best Flour; ("Enrichment" simply means that two B-vitamins and iron, which your family needs every day, have been added to Pillsbury's Best. The superior baking quality and flavor of this fine flour are unchanged.) Add 2 1/2 tps. baking powder (or 1 1/4 tps. double-acting) and 1/2 tsp. salt; sift three times. 4. Cream 1/2 c. shortening; add 1 c. sugar gradually; beat until light, then add each addition; beat well at end. (That fluffy lightness is typical of batter made with Pillsbury's Best. This superb flour is milled from only the choicest, selected wheats. Furthermore, actual baking tests are made 4 to 6 times daily during milling, to other 1/2 in well-greased 8-in. layer pan in moderate oven (375° F.) 20 min. for plain layer, 45 min. for layer with cherries. 8. Spread cold layers with sweetened whipped cream, using cherry layer on top. Men (and women folks, too) snap to attention as a sight like that! And when they bite into that fluffy Pillsbury cake—they'll exclaim, "Why, Pillsbury's Best Flour from your grocer today—and try this bound-to-be-praised dessert in your own kitchen. You'll find, too, Pillsbury's Best is best for all your baking!"

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR LEFTOVERS

Ever-mounting living costs have increased the homemaker's left-over problem. Food costs too much these days to throw away the smallest amount of meat, vegetables, or fruits left over from meal to meal or from day to day.

But if repeated immediately and often, left-overs soon lose their appeal with the family appetite. Left-overs cannot be kept too long, even with the most modern refrigeration. What to do?

Some mothers and housekeepers have solved the problem by masquerading the left-overs. After a bit of deft camouflage, it is almost impossible for the family to label any such dish "left-overs" and turn up its collective nose at it. Under this scheme, left-overs from one meal can be served the next meal as an entirely different dish.

For instance, left-over meats may be disguised by the use of gravy, white sauce, tomato sauce, or by making them into meat loaf, decorated with sliced hard-boiled eggs. Left-over vegetables can often be combined to make a new dish for the next meal. Some left-over vegetables may be combined with left-over meats to form a palatable new dish. But the combining must be done carefully and the disguising skillfully. It takes a lot of planning and delicate seasoning if the problem is to be solved effectively.

Try This Recipe For Chicken Fricassee

No dish during these winter months has a more popular appeal to hearty eaters, and even the finicky, than chicken fricassee. It is an inexpensive dish, and easy to prepare. The following recipe serves six people.

Ingredients: One five-pound stewing hen, cut up; one and one-half pounds salt; three tablespoons fat; four tablespoons flour; two cups stock; one-half cup cream; one-fourth teaspoon ginger.

Directions: Cook the chicken in salted water until tender, letting it cook gently for about two hours. Drain, and flour and brown in fat. Shape mashed potatoes, rice croquettes or bread slices into hearts, spread with melted butter and brown, then top with creamed peas, mushrooms, fish or chicken. Make biscuits or rolls into heart designs and have cranberry jelly, jellied fruit salad or a baked dessert come to the table in the shape of a heart.

Cupids: Cream 1/2 cup butter, add 1 1/2 cups sugar and beat 2 minutes. Stir in 1 teaspoon each vanilla, grated orange and lemon rinds, 1/4 teaspoon almond extract, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 2 eggs. Beat thoroughly. Add 3 cups flour and 2 tablespoons baking powder. Shape dough into a ball.

Wash and polish several good hard apples. When they are dry, rub a bit of grease over the skin. Beginning at the stem of the apple, force rows of whole cloves into the apples from top to bottom. Let stand until the juice has run off. Then add a bright ribbon to the stems and wrap in cellophane. Your "spice apples," inexpensive and made in a jiffy, are all ready to add quaint fragrance to your friends' cedar chests and linen closets.

Gay Touches for Valentine's Day

VALENTINE PARTY SQUARES: Easy to make, grand to eat.

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

You'll want to have at least a few frills with that St. Valentine's Day dinner. There are a lot of easy ways to provide festive touches for family and friends at the "party meal" on this sentimental holiday.

Let heart designs set the pattern. Fashion hearts from pastry and use them for covering pot pie mixtures, cut out small pie crust hearts and set several atop cherry, jellied strawberry or creamy raspberry pie filling.

Shape mashed potatoes, rice croquettes or bread slices into hearts, spread with melted butter and brown, then top with creamed peas, mushrooms, fish or chicken. Make biscuits or rolls into heart designs and have cranberry jelly, jellied fruit salad or a baked dessert come to the table in the shape of a heart.

Cupids: Cream 1/2 cup butter, add 1 1/2 cups sugar and beat 2 minutes. Stir in 1 teaspoon each vanilla, grated orange and lemon rinds, 1/4 teaspoon almond extract, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 2 eggs. Beat thoroughly. Add 3 cups flour and 2 tablespoons baking powder. Shape dough into a ball.

VALENTINE PARTY SQUARES
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 tablespoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg unbeaten
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sift and measure flour, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter and sugar gradually, and cream together well. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in moderate oven (350°) 30 minutes.

Gelatin Heart Decorations
Dissolve fruit flavored gelatin and pour into shallow pan. Chill until firm. Cut into desired shapes, with cookie cutter. Cut cake into squares and decorate each square with gelatin. Serve with custard sauce or whipped cream.

1/2 tablespoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 4 tablespoons fat, 1 egg, beaten and 1/2 cup milk. Pat out soft dough until 1/4 inch thick and cut out hearts. Dip each into 4 tablespoons sugar mixed with 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon and 1/4 cup chopped nuts. Arrange on top the fruit and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve warm.

Roll Suggestion

When you are over supplied with rolls, use them as containers for creamed foods, minced fish or meat tidbits blended with leftover gravy or sauce or heaped up vegetables topped with seasonings. Scoop out centers (use for crumbs, later). Brush insides with butter and toast brown.

Helps Gelatins

A little salt—about one-eighth teaspoon for two cups of gelatin blend—improves all gelatin dishes, whether they are the sweet dessert type or salad variety.

No Refuge from Love

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PEEP ASSOCIATION JERRY BRONDFIELD

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR
"NO, NEIL, you mustn't do that. You can't leave me like this," Molla said. "You still have a great future ahead of you. This is all too small, too unimportant a reason to take a step like that."
"Too small, eh?" he said quite bitterly. "You have a strange idea of the magnitude of things."
It was snowing harder now. The horses' flanks were steaming.
"Please do me a great favor, Molla. Try to forget that I ever kissed you, that I ever said the things I just did. I think that will help a great deal. It won't leave me with the feeling of futility that I now have."
"I'll try," she promised. Yes, she would try, she thought, but maybe he was asking too much. She'd know definitely when Tay was well again.

"You want to resign?" Burton Whitworth looked incredulous. "Well, what are you talking about? You just can't."
He stopped for an instant. "But if you have a better position lined up, perhaps we can meet their offer. We're not going to let you get away without a fight."
Neil shook his head. "It's nothing like that. I'd rather work for you than any man in the world. Please don't force me to stab at some silly reason to satisfy you. Just allow me to state that my reasons are personal and let it go at that."
"Oh, personal, eh?" Burton Whitworth lit a cigar and glanced intently at the glowing end. "Something like falling in love with Molla Glendon, maybe."
Neil jerked upright in his seat. "Are you guessing?"
Burton Whitworth shook his head and smiled. "No, Neil, I'm not guessing. Maybe I'm just a wise old man who knows a lot more things than he's usually credited with knowing. Maybe I've one of those rare gifts of observation. Call it what you will, you haven't fooled me."
He flicked the ashes on his cigar. "You may have fooled Molla and yourself, but you have to get up a little earlier in the morning to sneak past me."
He leaned forward. "You are in love with her, aren't you?"
"Yes," Neil said flatly. "And when we get that dam built and the concrete passed for army approval I'm going to clear out."
"You are like the devil—and what are you going to do about Molla?"
Neil looked blank. "Nothing, of course."
"You're a fool—a silly, spineless fool, at that. Tay is my son, but by the great horned spoon, if you're in love with his fiancée, and you think she may be in love with you . . .

go ahead and do something about it. You've got the lives of three people to think about, not just your own. Don't be selfish," Neil said admiringly. "But I have no assurance that Molla is in love with me or has any intentions of falling in love with me."
"Well, sir, then I'd try to find out before it's too late," Burton Whitworth said whimsically.
"I have about as much subtlety as a tank. Just how do I go about that?" Neil asked sardonically.
"Eh? Well, that's your problem. That's where I fade out of the picture, because any advice I could give you wouldn't be worth your knowing what."
Neil left the city the day Tay came back to work. He stopped at Burton Whitworth's office to say goodbye. "I'll probably be gone about a week," he said. "We've selected that stream up near Poughkeepsie. It shouldn't take me more than four days to lay the ground work and see how Dr. Jordan is getting on with his concrete."
Whitworth nodded. "Good enough. And remember, check in by phone every day. It'll be easier for you to get us than for us to get you if something comes up."
Neil left then. He walked all the way through the outer office without once turning around. Molla watched him go. He hardly had spoken a word to her in almost a week. In fact, it appeared as though he had been trying to avoid her.
Molla looked after him until the door closed behind his back. She bit her lip and turned around to find Tay watching her.
"Something troubling you?" he asked coolly.
She was surprised. "Nothing is troubling me. I was just surprised that Neil didn't say goodbye when he left."
Tay leaned both arms over the railing above her desk. "Does that make such a terrible difference?"
She wanted to say yes. It was on the tip of her tongue, but somehow the words wouldn't come out. Instead, she said, "I merely thought it quite unusual."
He didn't say anything and turned away. He took two steps and came back. "By the way," he said pleasantly, "Molla wants me to bring you out for dinner tonight. I guess there are some things she wants to speak to you about."
"I'm sorry, but I'm busy tonight, Tay."
He frowned. "Something you can't break?"
It was only a movie with Enid Blair, but Molla shook her head. "Sorry. But how about tomorrow night?"
"Well, I guess that'll be okay," Molla was quite silent riding out to Long Island with Tay the next night.

"What's the matter, Beautiful?" he asked. "Got the weight of the world on your mind?"
"Hardly that much," she told him. Suddenly she said, "Tay, are you really, tremendously in love with me?"
He was startled. "Good lord, of course. Why do you ask that?"
"Because when you were unconscious in that hospital in Georgia you said some things which made me think."
This time she could almost feel the tightness in his tone. "What did I say?" he asked quickly.
Molla stared straight ahead through the windshield as she spoke. "You must have been delicious. You thought you were speaking to that—Anthony girl you got drunk with. It sounded as though you were repeating your conversation with her, or at least part of it."
"What part?"
"The part," Molla said, "where you told her I was sweet enough to take a chance with . . . that you were willing to take the gamble . . . especially with three months in which to see how the dice would turn up."
She turned around to look at him then, but now it was his turn to stare straight ahead.
"I don't care to be a 'gamble,' Tay. I don't intend to be a trial bride, to be a subject of debate with yourself. I can't let you be that unfair to me."
He was silent. "Can't you say something?" she asked softly. "I believe I would feel much better if you would deny it."
"All right," he said finally. "Then I will deny it . . . in effect, I vaguely recall saying something like that to Clarice Anthony. But I couldn't have said it. You're not going to let the stupid mutterings of a man in his cups spoil your happiness, are you?"
Her happiness, Molla reflected somewhat grimly, was exactly what she was interested in, and she knew full well that one who was drunk or delirious often made true statements of fact despite his condition.
"How can I be sure?" she asked hollowly.
He put one arm around her and drew her closer as he drove.
"Just take my word for it, Beautiful," he murmured.
Despite the reassurance of his voice, the pressure of his arm, Molla knew she wasn't convinced. She knew the beliefs which were then being formed in her mind, already were taking the shape of things to come.

"Heart Disease" Often Is False Diagnosis, Dr. Clendening Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
At the beginning of Dr. Richard Cabot's book "Facts on the Heart," he puts down the statement, "Most heart disease is imaginary."
Every practicing doctor who sees many patients knows this is true. The words "heart disease" are fear-sounding to most people and it is no wonder when some doctor makes a careless remark about a dropped beat in the pulse or a little rise in blood pressure or a queer sound in the heart, that this should create dread and forbidding.
Many kinds of instruments have been placed in the doctor's hands to use in examining the heart, and sometimes one doctor or another hasn't learned how to use these wisely. It was this sort of practice that caused an eminent American medical man to wish that the blood pressure instrument had never been invented and caused Sir James MacKenzie to say that the stethoscope had done more harm than good.
I find much wisdom in the list given by a Boston physician of various signs and symptoms apparently produced by the heart in its complicated work, but which do not necessarily mean heart disease. For instance, there is slow pulse, a pulse as slow as fifty is commonly found in young athletes. Slow pulses are also regularly found in elderly people and in convalescents from any illness. Irregularity of the heart doesn't mean heart disease. There is one form of irregularity that occurs in over seventy-five per cent of young people in which the pulse is faster during inspiration of the breath than in expiration. At the other extreme of life, seventy-five per cent of people over fifty-five years old have an irregularity of the pulse in the form of dropped beats.

Disturbances of the heart sounds may be mistakenly called murmurs. The physician who tells a patient that he has a heart murmur or a valvular disease of the heart should be very certain of his ground. The heart makes all sorts of queer noises.
Last week in pursuit of some studies in the auscultation of the heart, I made a list of some twenty abnormal sounds which the heart makes and which are not murmurs and are not dangerous and which nobody very thoroughly understands.
Pain in the chest nowadays is almost invariably put down to angina pectoris or coronary artery disease. As a matter of fact, pain and tenderness in the chest in young people is almost always functional or nervous in origin. Discomfort in the chest which is not due to heart disease is almost constant in some people and in most of them is usually aggravated by exertion.
Even if organic heart disease exists, it is not incompatible with long life. I saw a review in a medical journal the other day of the histories of twenty patients, all of whom were over eighty years of age, and all of whom had had a heart disease for some thirty to sixty years.
Questions and Answers
E. E. B.:—What causes a sty, are they contagious, and what is the best thing to do for them?
Answer: Sties are caused by a staphylococcus infection in the hair follicle of the eyelash. They are not likely to be contagious to others, but when one of them comes along, it is very likely that self-contagion will occur by rubbing the eyes so that other eyelash follicles are infected. In the way of prevention, the best thing I know is to get a ten per cent solution of alcohol and a small camel's hair brush and when a person has a sty, brush the edges of the eyelid lightly two or three times a day with the brush after it has been dipped in the alcohol.

MANY contracts would be easy to make if you could have the lead be wherever you want it at various crucial moments. As a consequence, you sometimes have to fenagle to the limit in order to have it be at the right place at the right time. Even such devices as discarding a perfectly good ace may be necessary—if you can think of them.

by elementary schools, visited the school during the week and congratulated the students for the fine record they made in the purchase of stamps, Principal Brain said.

The students of the school held their weekly assembly today, under direction of Miss Mabel Hitchins. A summary of work done in recent weeks in music, dramatization, reading and other social studies was illustrated by the students who took part in the program. Emphasis was also placed on a sustained interest in the purchase of defense stamps.

The drive for Red Cross war funds among the churches of Frostburg and vicinity will be continued over Sunday, Thomas Elias, chairman of the drive, announced today.

The envelopes were distributed at the various churches two weeks ago. Many of them, ministers stated, have not been returned for different reasons at the various churches. At one church, services were not held on account of a break-down in the heating system. The congregations in many of the churches last Sunday, on account of the very unfavorable weather conditions, were not as large as usual.

Several ministers expressed the opinion that a large number of envelopes would be returned Sunday and Chairman Elias said the collection would be tabulated early in the week.

Injured at Work

Caught beneath a fall of rock while working in mine, No. 17 of the Consolidated Coal Company, William Broadwater, 26, Lonaconing, was received at Miners' hospital last evening, suffering from a fractured pelvis and fractured left leg, sustained while working on the night shift.

LaSalle Tops Allegany in Court Thriller

Explorer Quint Slays Unbeaten By Winning, 44-40

Score Deadlocked Ten Times in Hectic Intra-City Battle

The rampaging LaSalle High Explorers kept their winning streak intact, took the lead in the intra-city scholastic championship race and broke a three-year jinx by outlasting the Allegany High Campers 44-40 last night on the SS. Peter and Paul school court before a capacity crowd.

The battle, easily the best of the three intra-city games that have been staged this year and one of the most thrilling ever to be played here, was practically anybody's contest from the starting whistle to the final gun.

The all-around play of slim George Geatz, LaSalle forward, and the sharpshooting and passing of both clubs, which were so evenly matched that not more than four points separated them throughout the hammer-and-logs contest, were the features.

The triumph boosted the Explorers' winning streak to fourteen games and put the Blue and Gold out in front in the race for the city title with two victories. It also was the first time since the 1938 campaign that a LaSalle quint has stopped a West Side aggregation.

AHS Streak Broken
The figures were tied ten times during the hectic tussle and except for the final score and Allegany's 10-6 lead midway in the first quarter, never more than four points separated the quint.

The West Siders held a 12-10 advantage at the quarter but trailed by one point at 20-19 at the half. Both teams registered sixteen points in the third round, which proved one of the fastest quarters ever to be played on local boards.

With a little over a minute to go in the last period, the score was tied 40-40 and then the bobbing and twisting Geatz, who was held to one field goal during the first half by Allegany's Donald Dell, converted a foul, Johnny Small, Blue and Gold center, added another point at the charity stripe as Allegany tried desperately to get possession of the oval and a few seconds before the final gun, Geatz sewed up the contest with a neat doubleheader from the left corner.

Centers in Spotlight
During the first half, the rival pivot men held the spotlight with LaSalle's Small dropping in four baskets and two of three fouls and Allegany's Johnny Edwards engine four doubleheaders. In the last half, Geatz sparked the Blue and Gold with Small continuing his good work while Dell, Captain Milton Athey and Edwards were Allegany's standouts.

The Explorers won the game at the foul stripe. The Campers cut the cords for eighteen field goals to LaSalle's seventeen but the Blue and Gold converted ten of fifteen gift tosses to Allegany's four of ten.

In the first quarter, the score was tied at two, four, six and ten with Edwards' basket from down under giving the Campers a 12-10 edge at the end of the half. Allegany held its biggest lead of the game midway in the stanza when the Campers, trailing 6-4, made six consecutive points on a basket and foul by Dell and a field goal and gift toss by Athey.

Fast Third Quarter
The second period was a duplicate of the first with Ray Schmutz's long heave from the right knotting the count at 12-12. The figures were deadlocked at 14-14 and 17-17 before Small made a foul, Ned Stapleton a field goal and Edwards a twin-pointer from the corner to make it 20-19 LaSalle at the whistle.

Six field goals passed through the nets during the first minute and forty seconds of the third period and with about two and one-half minutes gone, sixteen points had been registered.

Athey and Edwards sent Allegany to the front with doubleheaders before Small cut the Campers' margin to one point. Athey and Small traded baskets, Dell connected from under the hoop, Stapleton dropped in a two-pointer and Dell tossed the ball through from far out, making the figures 29-26 Allegany.

The Explorers caught the Alleganyans at 31-31 on Geatz's free throw but Don McIntyre, who played nearly all the game despite an injured ankle, broke the tie. Geatz made a foul, Bobby Stakem of LaSalle followed with a field goal, Allegany's Glenn Twigg found the iron ring and Geatz sent the Explorers ahead 36-35 at the end of the third heat with a pair of free throws.

Edwards Paces Campers
At the start of the final chapter, Geatz and Dell exchanged field goals for all of the scoring during the first four minutes. Then, Edwards split a pair of fouls to tie the score at 38-38 and Small on a follow-up and Don Lee of Allegany on a one-hander kept the figures in a knot to set the stage for LaSalle's final and successful effort.

Small was the game's top scorer with seventeen points on seven field goals and three of four fouls while Geatz gathered sixteen on five baskets and six of eight free throws. Geatz converted five of six charity heaves during the last half.

For Allegany, Edwards was the top point-getter with thirteen on six fielders and one of two fouls

Cornelius Warmerdam Holds Unique Place among Nation's Pole Vaulters

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Cornelius Warmerdam, who teaches history, geometry, and English to the kids of Tuolumne, Calif., is the best-dressed fifteen-foot pole vaulter in the world. He is also the worst-dressed fifteen-foot pole vaulter, and the shortest, and the tallest.

Guarantees 15-Foot Vault

Mr. Warmerdam is the only man who can telegraph across the continent to the officials of a New York City track and field meet as follows:

"Not worth while crossing country for fourteen-foot vault, but if you will lengthen the runway, can practically guarantee you a fifteen-foot vault."

Mr. Warmerdam is the only man in the world who can make such a guarantee. In fact, Mr. Warmerdam is the only man in the world who can vault fifteen feet at all, and he does this parlor trick with such regularity that people are beginning to suspect that he can't break himself of the habit. Mr. Warmerdam admits that fifteen-foot vaulting, like smoking hop, is a very insidious practice.

Mr. Warmerdam, otherwise known as Dutch, first strayed from the path of righteousness in April, 1940, when he vaulted fifteen feet and no one, one hundredth inches. Having tested the forbidden fruit, he swiftly became a hardened sinner and spent most of his time in the stratosphere, sometimes neglecting to come down for hours at a stretch.

He has now vaulted fifteen feet or higher on twelve different occasions. The officials of the Millrose games, scheduled for Madison Square Garden Saturday night, lost no time promising Mr. Warmerdam that they would lengthen their vaulting runway as requested. A certified, habitual fifteen-foot pole vaulter can have all the runway he wants.

Smoke Don't Annoy

They will give Mr. Warmerdam 137 linear feet in which to gather momentum. With this detail attended to, Mr. Warmerdam says he looks forward to a pleasant evening among the rafters of the big arena. He likes indoor vaulting.

"I don't mind the smoke indoors," he says, "and it's nice not to have to buck a wind."

The only people who suffer at Mr. Warmerdam's entertainments are the judges, some of whom were never as high as fifteen feet in the air in their lives, before meeting Mr. Warmerdam. The pole vault calls for three judges, but usually the boys compromise by sending up one of their number—the youngest and bravest—to place the bar and measure Mr. Warmerdam's vaults.

Scaling those heights on a teetering ladder, the arbitrator tries not to look at the ground far below him. He takes a deep pull at his oxygen tank, measures the vault quickly, and scrambles down. The rest of the judges take his word for what happened. They know by one look at him that he has been awful high and seen strange things.

We have the word of one of these daredevils that Mr. Warmerdam has gone as high as fifteen feet five three-fourths inches. He is the only living witness. Mr. Warmerdam himself is in no position to take bearings and jot down notes as he soars over the bar.

The Dutchman from California caught the vaulting fever as a boy of nine, sixteen years ago. He never cleared twelve feet in high school, but one day a traveling salesman, driving past the Warmerdam fruit ranch, saw the kid vault an easy thirteen feet with makeshift equipment and promptly tipped off Flint Hanner, track coach at Fresno State college, at Fresno State, Warmerdam went higher and higher.

The champ is a big fellow, six feet and 180 pounds, and what gets him up there is his power—plus speed of foot on the runway. He is not as formful and smooth as Earle Meadows, the former record-holder, but he grabs the pole a good six inches higher than Meadows and the others—at the thirteen-foot mark—and pulls himself up with a wrench that few vaulters could absorb.

If you want to know why he does it, you will have to get in touch with Mr. Warmerdam yourself.—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Ball Players Given Training Tip by Ty Cobb

Georgia Peach Urges Boys To Keep in Shape All Year Around

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—(Wide World)—Baseball players who work industriously during the winter months putting bar windows and out-size rear porches on their main frames, and then work just as industriously, and much more painfully, during spring training trying to dismantle them get no sympathy from Ty Cobb.

The Georgia Peach says these gents who spent their off season at ease, living on the fat of the bankroll and taking no more exercise than is necessary to shoo off flies and keep woodpeckers from tapping out the Morse code on their noggin, in many instances actually are shortening their playing careers. He explained his theories to Freddy Corcoran recently. Corcoran arranges the tournament tour for the P. G. A., but is a baseball nut on the side. Cobb's fame is associated with baseball, but he is a golf nut on the side, so when the two get together there is an amazing confusion of mashie shots over the left fielder's head and three-baggers to the sixteenth green.

Cobb Is Example

Cobb pointed out that golfers, like baseball players, must keep in shape twelve months of the year, and he said the secret of whatever success he enjoyed (a mere trifle, naturally) was the fact he always was pointing toward the next season as soon as he completed the last game in the fall.

"In 1911, when I led the league in batting with .420, I had joined the team only five days before the season opened, due to a delayed salary agreement with the club owners," Cobb told Corcoran. "The fact that I was in tip-top shape enabled me to have a good year despite the fact I missed spring training."

Ty believes that any athlete should not train periodically, but should keep in training twelve months of the year, whether the training is for baseball, football, hockey or any other sport which calls for physical perfection. He himself, during his playing career, hunted, took long walks, played golf and watched his diet in the off season.

There is no rebuttal to Cobb's argument, and the astonishing part of it is that so many fellows who rely on their athletic skill for their livelihood let themselves get fat and soggy when not actually engaged in their trade, and then frantically try to get back in condition in a space of six weeks or so.

Every year training camp notes carry the word that or that player has reported overweight and is having trouble rounding into form. We've seen them ourselves—overstuffed, wheezing and grumpy—and marveled that a guy could get himself in such a state of unpreparedness in a space of three or four months. If they do it this year, some of them will be arrested for hoarding automobile tires around their middles. Over-inflated ones, at that.

Buck Newsom admits that his pathetic showing in 1941 compared with his 1940 performance was due to allowing himself to fatten up during the winter, and many another ball player, if frank, would admit abrupt form reversals were due to the same cause.

Joe Louis might exhibit "A" for Cobb. Joe was in training practically the year round last year, and the oftener he fought the better he got, reaching a climax in a superb performance in his recent hurried meeting with Buddy Baer.

But ball players being ball players, a lot of them still will continue to use the winter months to catch up on their settin' around. Ty's advice is irrefragable.

Dempsey and Tunney Still News

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 (AP)—Jack Dempsey, one of the greatest and perhaps the most popular heavyweight champion of modern times, still keeps his name on the sports pages through frequent tours as a boxing and wrestling referee.

And the same goes for Max Baer, Jess Willard, Jack Sharkey and Jim Braddock. Jack Johnson spends some of his time around boxing gymnasiums appraising the newcomers and giving pointers now and then. Gene Tunney, who retired undefeated in 1928, is back up sports as physical director for several of the navy's training stations.

Of the group, only Baer is still an active participant. He bounces back every few months to challenge some of the younger crop bidding for the title. Last year Max stopped Pat Comiskey and Tony Galento, only to have his latest "come-back" halted in an eight-round defeat by Lou Nova. It will be surprising if Max doesn't appear again before long, clamoring for a bout.

Max, a Sacramento real estate dealer and agriculturalist in partnership with his long-time manager, Ancel Hoffman, once made a movie and would like another go at Hollywood.

Dempsey operates a bar-restaurant in New York and Sharkey owns a tavern in Boston. Dempsey's last venture as an active fighter

MILLROSE MEET DRAWS NATION'S TRACK STARS

Keith O'Rourke Notre Dame

Les MacMillan New York U.

Campbell Kane Indiana

Outstanding stars of the nation's track and field corps flock to New York this week-end for the first important indoor meet on the track calendar, the Millrose Games. Champions and record-breakers fill the entry lists, with such big names as Leslie MacMillan, Greg Rice and Cornelius Warmerdam among the entries. MacMillan is the king of the milers, already having equaled the world competitive record of 4:07.4 minutes. Rice heads the two-mile field. Warmerdam, world record holder in the pole vault, expects to break the indoor mark which is less than 15 feet, a mark Warmerdam has topped many times. Among others seeking wins are Notre Dame's high-jumping star, Keith O'Rourke, and Indiana's Campbell Kane, in the 600-yard run.

Palm to Florida

In the course of the next two months Florida will be the envy of forty-seven sister or brother states, when it comes to the matter of sport.

In addition to her racing season at Hialeah and Tropical, just warming up, it won't be many full moons before all the pennant contenders are heading that way, including Yankees, Cardinals, Reds and Dodgers, which includes all the pennant contenders we happen to have at this moment. If anyone cares to enter an outside flag entry he can pick up a good price.

In addition to racing and baseball, it is only a matter of winter days before Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Sammy Snead and other crack golfers attack both the Gulf and the Atlantic coast lines in the greatest winter season the pasturage of the "ancient green" has ever known. In this two months' period Florida will have on hand more champions, including men and horses than any state will know all year.

It is almost a dead-sure bet that Florida will send most of the spring and summer champions on their way to win before her spring season closes. From this list I mention Alsab for the three-year-olds—the Yankees, Cardinals, Reds or Dodgers for the pennant people—Wood, Hogan, Nelson or Snead for golf.

Picking the Winners

Trainer Ben Jones of the Warren Wright Calumet Farms refuses to concede the Kentucky Derby or the three-year-old crown to Alsab, the two-year-old meteor.

Jones points in the general direction of Sun Again and Some Chance. No one can tell how a two-year-old will act as a three-year-old. But if his three-year-old drop back Ben still gives you Whirlaway in the handicap division.

With full admiration for Trainer Jones and what he can do with a race horse, he will have his share of work ahead stopping Alsab, if the latter has all four legs hanging on. This two-year-old, more sensational than even Man o' War ever was, must be planted on top until some one looks better.

In Baseball

In baseball you can name your own odds or pencil your own ticket against any ball club outplaying the Yankees in the American League, and Cardinals, Dodgers or Reds in the National. The Dodgers start their training in Cuba but they put on the sharpening edges at Daytona Beach.

Anyone picking an outside team to crowd in ahead of this double combination should get 40 to 1. Maybe 50 to 1.

The Yankees are just about as strong as they were last season when they had the pennant won in late August. In the meanwhile, Cleveland has lost Feller and Boston has lost Ted Williams. The one outside chance is Chicago's White Sox.

The Golf Roundup

The fast-moving group of golfers anyone ever has seen soon will be moving from Arizona and Texas into the state where Ponce de Leon discovered youth from a fabled fountain.

In addition to other tournaments, Florida's four-ball match at Miami is close to the final word in all golf competition, in which each member of each team can go all out in peeling the hide off par. I saw the thriller a year ago when Hogan and Sarazen finally carved their way through the toughest competition in sport.

Ben Hogan, the grim-faced deadpanned, long-hitting Texan, is almost certain to move in again as the leading money winner of the 1942 season—using every ounce of his 135 pounds in every type of distance shot. Hogan will be the man to catch, and once you have caught him it is something like surrounding a grizzly bear or a black panther. Which means it is no bargain.

The 1942 battle among Hogan, Nelson, Snead and Craig Wood, to bring out the headlines, should be the top sporting event, with Hogan in possession of the lead.

So until April buds begin turning into May blossoms, Florida will be the sporting center of the world.

Winning the war is still above everything that counts. But back of this effort, an all-out effort, there should be no giving up in keeping the program of sport at a high level, especially when you consider what this program can do in the way of war funds and needed mental recreation.

In this war sport has contributed a larger share to the fighting forces than ever before—and this contribution constantly is being largely increased. So for two months, at least, Florida becomes even more than usual a vital part of the country on the sporting side.

Elk Garden K. of P. Loses to Tri-Towns

ELK GARDEN, W. Va., Feb. 6.—A visiting Tri-Towns Merchant basketball team handed the Elk Garden K. of P. unit a 61-54 setback this week despite Homer Brooks' thirty-five points for the locals.

Brooks riveted sixteen field goals and three of three fouls. Elk Garden was on top 17-14 at the quarter while the count stood 30-30 at the half. At the end of three periods the score was 45-38 in the Merchants' favor.

Parsons Defeats Piedmont Outfit In Loop Contest

Panthers Go on Warpath in Closing Minutes To Win 56 to 42

PARSONS, W. Va., Feb. 6.—Cutting loose with fourteen points, the Parsons High Panthers kept their Potomac Valley Conference record clean by defeating Coach Harold Smith's Piedmont high hoopers here tonight, 56-42.

In marking up their fifth straight conference triumph and their fourteenth victory in fifteen starts this season, the Panthers came from behind after trailing by a 7-6 margin at the quarter. At the half-way mark Parsons sank a top 23-14 but in the third round, Piedmont put on a rally to slice the locals' margin to two points at 32-30. The last chapter was nip-and-tuck until late in the quarter when the Panthers, sparked by Denver Strawderman and Glenn Shoemaker, turned on the heat to win going away.

Strawderman registered sixteen points for the winners and Glenn Shoemaker followed with twelve. Kelly with eleven markers and Ambrose with ten led Piedmont's assault. The lineups:

Baltimore University Shades Mt. St. Mary's

EMMITSBURG, Md., Feb. 6 (AP)—Nat Whitlitsky sank a field goal in the last few seconds of play and won a 38 to 37 decision for Baltimore university over the Mount St. Mary's five tonight.

The Baltimore sharpshooter's winning goal was one of seven he dumped in during the hard-fought contest. Four foul shots brought his point total to eighteen, two ahead of the sixteen piled up by the Mounts' best point-getter, Harkins.

The lead shifted back and forth six times during the first period but Baltimore held a 24 to 20 advantage at the half. The home team whittled at the lead and pulled even in the last period. Mount St. Mary's held a one-point edge as time dwindled but Whitlitsky's neat goal turned the tables.

Newsom May Quit Baseball Rather Than Accept Cut

Buck's Showing Last Season Expected To Bring Reduction

HARTSVILLE, S. C., Feb. 6 (AP)—Big Bobo Newsom indicated today that if his 1942 contract with the Detroit Tigers were too sharply rimmed he would mail it back unsigned.

"You all seem to know a lot more about it than I do," he commented, when asked for his reaction to a prospective steep salary cut. The ponderous right-hander then dismissed the whole subject with this terse sweep:

"There won't be any reaction at all."

"You mean that you intend to sign it and mail it back?" he was asked.

"I do not," he replied emphatically, sort of spitting out the words. "Then you won't sign it at all, eh?" as the interviewer tried the only obvious alternative.

"That's the idea," was the answer. "You'd quit baseball?"

"Might be."

Newsom indicated that he might have more to say after receiving the contract, especially if it were drastically pared.

All this was brought on by reports from Detroit that the 1942 contract had been mailed to thirty-three players and that a sharp salary curtailment was afoot. Buck's fortunes of last season, when he won few games, were expected to result in a liberal whack off his salary figure, undisclosed by him but reputed to be $37,500, second only to the $55,000 ear-marked for Hank Greenberg.

"They can cut all they please," said Newsom, "and maybe they can look for some pitchers, too."

Asked what he'd do if he decided to quit baseball, Bobo replied that he'd probably "stay here and run my grill."

Millmen Keep Loop Record Clean with Fourth Straight Win

HAGERSTOWN, Feb. 6.—The Fort Hill High Sentinels of Cumberland County defeated Hagerstown in the final round of the first place in the final loop of the C. V. A. L. League competition by handing out a 42-19 victory to Coach Eddie Semler's Hagerstown high hoopers here tonight.

The victory was the Sentinels' fourth straight in the league and Coach "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Sentinels and White passers to sweep the two-game series. Fort Hill won the first contest at Cumberland, 34-19.

Cavanaugh's outfit held the upper hand throughout and turned in a sparkling defensive game in holding the locals to seven field goals. The contest was rough in spots. Fort Hill grabbed a 10-5 lead in the first period and then increased its margin to a dozen points at the end of the second quarter. At the end of three quarters, the score read Fort Hill 29, Hagerstown 15. In the fourth chapter, the Sentinels again led on the warpath to rack up seven markers to the home team's two.

Coach Cavanaugh used two complete teams in routing the Hagerstown five with Edwin Decker, Don Tinkle and Paul Whitford sharing the honors with ten points apiece. Ed Bachtel, who was Hagerstown's best bet with three of his seven field goals. The line-

Nicholson Heads Re-organization Committee of "Y"

Five Men Appointed by Smith; Bethune Is Secretary of Joint Committee

Appointment of a joint committee of five men to serve with five persons designated by the "Save-the-Y" committee on the re-organization of the Central Y.M.C.A. was made yesterday at a special and final meeting of the Y.M.C.A. board of directors.

Those appointed by J. George Smith, president, to serve on the joint committee are Somerville Nicholson, chairman, Edwin T. Dixon, Henry W. Price, William J. Edwards and James Alfred Alvrett.

15 Directors Attend
Fifteen of the twenty-one Y. M. C. A. directors attended the meeting, the absent members being out of the city or unable to attend because of illness.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the board: "Be it resolved by the board of directors of the Cumberland Y. M. C. A.:

"1. That there be appointed from our number by our president five persons to serve with five persons designated by the "Save-the-Y" committee as a joint committee on the re-organization of the Cumberland Young Men's Christian Association.

"This joint committee shall be instructed and authorized to formulate and put in action plans for re-organization and shall be empowered to act to all intents and purposes as the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian Association in the interim period until a new board of directors shall be duly elected, whereupon the joint committee shall be discharged.

"2. That the joint committee shall invite to serve as its executive secretary the executive secretary of the Central Atlantic Area Council Y.M.C.A.

Board Will Resign
"3. That the individual present members of the board of directors, whose names are hereto signed, hereby tender their resignations as members of said board to become effective when their successors are duly elected and qualified."

The resolution was signed by J. George Smith, George G. Young, Cyril B. Geare, E. T. Dixon, Roy W. Eves, Harold W. Smith, Victor D. Halsey, Clarence Litzenberg, Milton Bernstein, James Alfred Alvrett, W. Donald Smith, Dr. A. H. Hawkins, Arthur H. Happe, W. J. Edwards, Charles L. Kopp, Charles A. Richards, Douglas R. Rail Fares Will Jump Next Week

Ten Per Cent Increase Will Become Effective at Midnight Feb. 9

A ten per cent increase in passenger train fares, affecting all railroads, will go into effect here at midnight, Monday, February 9, it was announced last evening by Matthew W. Grove, traveling passenger agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

The increase will apply to all fares, Grove said, except the one and one-fourth cents-a-mile rate allowed members of the military or naval services in uniform traveling on their own expense on furlough and to certain extra-fare trains.

Grove pointed out that the basic first-class fare now is three cents a mile in all sections of the country while the basic coach fare is two cents a mile in the east and west, and one and one-half cents a mile in the south.

The present round trip fare from Cumberland to New York is $13.18, including tax of sixty-three cents while the round trip fare from Cumberland to Pittsburgh is $5.99, including tax of twenty-nine cents.

A list of the increased rates are expected to be received at the local B.O. ticket office within the next several days.

It is estimated that the ten per cent increase will add $45,000,000 to railroad revenues on the basis of their 1941 business.

Klefter Resigns As Fort Hill Music Teacher

Will Leave Feb. 13 To Accept Position at Lenoir, N. C. High School

Resignation of Robert O. Klefter, music teacher of Fort Hill high school, to accept a similar position at Lenoir, N. C., high school, was announced yesterday by Victor D. Halsey, principal.

Klefter, who joined the Fort Hill teaching staff in September 1941, as successor to Milton A. Holtz, will leave here Friday, February 13.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools, expects to appoint Klefter's successor next week.

Since joining the Fort Hill faculty, Klefter has taught instrumental classes and directed the band and orchestra at the local school. He also directs the Cumberland Alumni Symphony Orchestra, which is sponsored by the Rotary club. The latter organization gave one concert under Klefter's direction.

Klefter came here from Towanda, Pa. He is twenty-six years old, is married and has one child.

Four Persons Are Hurt in Accident

Cars Collide on Red Hill Due to Icy Conditions of Road

Four persons were injured on Red Hill, several miles west of this city on Route 40 yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock as a result of a two car collision on the icy highway.

The accident occurred, state police said, when a car driven by Miss Bess Volk, 45, of LaVale, manager of the Beall high school cafeteria, and a car driven by Gilbert Warnick, Moscow, collided halfway up the hill.

Miss Volk, who was on her way to school, was treated in Memorial hospital for cuts on the forehead. Three Celenese workers riding with Warnick, were also treated in hospitals for injuries suffered in the collision.

Miss Laura Kallmyer, 30, Lonaconing, was treated in Memorial hospital dispensary for facial cuts and a bruised leg, while Thomas Chappell, 35, Barton, suffered a lacerated lip and a fractured ankle. James O'Rourke, Frostburg, who also was riding with Warnick, was treated in Miners hospital, Frostburg, for cuts and bruises.

Another passenger in Warnick's car, Raymond Elchhorn, Lonaconing, was uninjured in the crash. The injured persons were taken to the hospital by Edward Neat, Frostburg.

Trooper Harry Harrison of the state police, who investigated, said that no charges have as yet been placed against the drivers of the cars as the investigation has not been completed.

The first report meeting will be held February 13. The campaign opens Monday night with a dinner meeting at 6:15 o'clock in Central

An official of the Office of Price Administration told members of Allegheny County Rationing Board 1-1 yesterday that inspectors will arrive here Monday morning to begin a survey of tire inventories in Western Maryland.

J. Allison Ballenger, of the OPA, who will handle the work in Maryland, discussed various phases of the tire rationing act with members of the local board and stated that he will go to Westernport today to confer with James E. Kenny, chairman, and members of Allegheny County Rationing Board 1-2. Ballenger also plans to confer with members of the rationing board in Oakland before returning to Baltimore.

1,800 Dealers in State
Inspectors will have lists of all retail and wholesale tire dealers in this section of the state, together with complaints of violations from the files of rationing administrators.

Actual inspection of dealers' stocks will be started Monday morning. Ballenger said that there are 1,800 tire dealers in the State of Maryland.

Lists and complaints obtained from the state rationing administrator have been forwarded to Leo H. McCormick, acting regional director of OPA, through Wage and Hour Division Administrators.

Members of McCormick's staff, co-operating with Lewis C. Burr, of Baltimore, state rationing administrator, and the Wage and Hour Division staffs, will help adjust difficulties and answer questions which may arise in the course of the inspection.

Ballenger said that activities of inspectors will include both examination of the records of tire dealers and an actual count of all stocks on hand.

They will seek to discover whether any dealer has filed the required inventory of stock on hand December 12, whether he sold tires or tubes in violation of the "freeze order" prevailing from December 11 until January 4, and whether he violated the tire rationing regulations which have been in effect since January 5.

The survey will provide the OPA with records for every dealer, retail or wholesale, in the three states, covering stocks reported on hand December 12, the stock received between that date and the date of the inspection, authorized sales during that period, and the stock on hand at the end of the period.

Three Get Certificates
Certificates for obsolete tires and tubes were issued yesterday by the local rationing board to three persons.

Those receiving the certificates were Floyd Gilbert Clites, of Corriargville, for one tire, 550 x 19; Charles Ludwig Heinrich, of 34 Seymour street, for two tires and tubes, 525-21 and Josiah G. Dolly, of 13 Decatur street, for two 450 x 20 tires.

Four Fires Keep Firemen Busy

Interior and Furniture of Green Street Home Slightly Damaged

One local home was slightly damaged by flames and smoke yesterday and city firemen extinguished three other fires before the flames could make enough headway to do any damage.

A fire which, firemen were told, started from a receptacle in the living room of the home of Mrs. William M. Bruce, 209 Greene street, damaged the interior of the room and much of the furniture as well as causing considerable smoke damage to the rest of the home.

West Side firemen were called to the home at 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Neighbors had the fire fairly well under control when the fire fighters reached the home. Only a small amount of water was needed, firemen reported, to extinguish the flames.

South Cumberland firemen extinguished a rubbish fire in a vacant house at 408 Seymour street, last evening at 6:30 o'clock. Damage, firemen said, was slight.

East Side fire fighters were called to the home of Alfred M. Pitch, 300 block Piedmont avenue, last evening at 7:30 o'clock by a fire in the paint shop in the building. The shop, firemen said, was locked and there was no hint of the cause of the blaze. Damage was slight, firemen reported.

South End firemen were called to the 400 block of Louisiana avenue, last evening to extinguish a fire in a car. The blaze, firemen said, was probably caused by a short circuit. Only damage to the car, firemen said, was to one of the battery terminals.

Sons of the Legion Sell $500 Worth Of Defense Stamps

Five hundred dollars worth of defense stamps have been sold in Cumberland by members of Fort Cumberland Squadron No. 13, Sons of the American Legion, in the first week of the campaign. It was announced last evening by Fred A. Puderbaugh, past commander, and chairman of the defense savings stamps sale.

The campaign started one week ago and results have been most encouraging, Puderbaugh said.

The sale will be continued throughout the city in the house-to-house campaign.
